Jury rules Tatum hanging a suicide

CHARLESTON -- A coroner's jury impaneled Thursday afternoon for an inquest into the hanging death of Jimmy (James Morgan) Tatum, 19, of Anniston rules that Tatum committed suicide by hanging himself Sept. 4 in Mississippi County jail.

The jury, called by Coroner Elgin McMikle, also ruled that Tatum acted alone in committing suicide with no one else involved in the death.

Tatum, who was being held in Mississippi County Jail on a charge of first degree murder, filed in connection with the July 14 stabbing death of Mrs. Mary Helen Finley, 44, of rural Charleston, was found hanging in his cell shortly after 5 p.m. Sept. 4 by a jail trustyTyrone Price, one of the witnesses at the inquest.

Other witnesses questioned by Prosecuting Attorney Edward C. Graham during the informational and investigative proceeding were McMikle, Deputy Sheriff Dennis Turley and T.E. Simmons, jailer.

The jury was instructed to determine if the death was a felony, an accident or suicide.

McMikle testified he was summoned to the jail about 5:30 p.m. Sept. 4 by the Sheriff's department, where he found Tatum hanging from a water pipe near the ceiling of his cell. A sheet from his bunk had been knotted around his neck and looped over the waterpipe.

The coroner attributed death to strangulation and testified that there were no other marks, other than bruises about the neck, on the body or any broken bones. There were no indications within the cell of a struggle and Tatum had been dead less than an hour when he arrived. McMikle said, as the body temperature was still warm.

Adding that he had learned nothing during his investigation to indicate anyone else was involved in the death, McMikle said in his opinion it was a suicide.

McMikle also said he found a note lying on top of a television in the cell. The note, which read, "I did not do it" and I love LaVonda A", and two letters, which McMikle said were given to him by the sheriff's department, were introduced in evidence by Graham.

The letters, one addressed to Tatum's attorney, James Robison of Sikeston, and the other to his girlfriend, LaVonda Abernathy of East Prairie, were read by the jury members. Contents of the letters were not disclosed to the public.

Turley's testimony showed the officer had last seen Tatum alive on Sept. 3. He said he was called to the jail about 5:45 p.m. Sept. 4. and took photographs of the cell and body. The photographs were viewed by the jury.

The officer said he saw no signs of a struggle within the cell, knew of no threats made against Tatum's life and said there was no way that anyone could have gotten into the cell, which is on the lower level of the jail, a cell used primarly for women.

Tatum was returned Aug. 31 from maximum security Fulton State Hospital where he had been taken for mental examination and declared competent to stand trial. His brother, Frankie Tatum, 24, of Anniston is charged with capital murder in the slaying death of Mrs. Finley and has also been declared competent to stand trial. He has not been returned to Mississippi County but is expected to be returned sometime next week. A preliminary hearing for him is scheduled for Sept. 15.

According to testimony from Price, he first met Tatum the day he was returned from the Fulton hospital. He had talked with him everyday and on the day of his death, Price said he had talked with him about an hour when his (Tatum's) girlfriend came up outside the jail and the two were talking through a window.

"I told him I was going upstairs to take a shower. I was gone about 30-minutes and when I came back I say him hanging. I maybe missed him by a few seconds for his body was still swinging when I came back," Price testified.

Tatum reportedly had trouble with his eyes and at times had double vision. Price related that he had written the two letters for Tatum, adding that Tatum had also written a note to be enclosed in the letter to his girlfriend.

After discovering the body, Price said he called out to Tatum hoping he could rouse him. Getting no response he said he then ran to the jailer's quarters in the jail and summoned Simmons, who called Sheriff Norris Grissom.

Also during his testimony, Price said Tatum had told him the only one he was afraid of was his brother, Frankie. "He told, me he had tried to kill himself before but that 'God wouldn't let him kill himself". He concluded by saying, "I figure he got depressed after his girlfriend left."

According to testimony from Simmons, he had seen Tatum alive in his cell about 35-40 minutes before he was found hanging, when the youth had asked him for change to get a soft drink.

The jailer said he went to the cell area after Price had hammered on his door, calling out that "Jimmy had hanged himself". The cell was locked and the body was slightly moving when he got to the lower floor of the jail where Tatum was being held, Simmons said.

Cooking School recipe is fun for area kitchens

Take one home economist, one program director, and one model kitchen furnished by Otasco, Lewis Furniture, Homestead, PJ Sully, McConnell's Chamber's Electric, Sikeston Lumber Co., and Coffey's Appliance. Add 850 women, men and youngsters from Sikeston and surrounding counties. Cook for two hours.

That's the recipe for Progressive Farmer's Southern Kitchens Cooking School Thursday night a the Sikeston High SchoolField House co-sponsored by the Daily Standard.

And the recipes were the name of the game.

A large crowd watched and listened for about two hours to a cooking demonstration by Phyllis Young, Progressive Farmers home economist. She and Beth Hawes, program director, make up one of four teams conducting cooking schools all across the South and Southwest. . . . bringing with them utensil- filled suitcases and equipment- filled trunks.

Earlier in the day, Miss Young opened her special suitcases and began measuring, slicing and stirring ingredients donated by Piggly Wiggly in preparation for recipes that would be prepared before the audience. She was assisted by Janet Lee of Benton and Kay Neill of Sikeston.

Meanwhile, Beth Hawes was preparing the model kitchen, supervising the hook up of appliances, moving in tables, setting lights, testing the sound system and making the final arrangements for the demonstration.

The "school time" was here and Miss Young prepared dishes from salads to breads, entrees and desserts, while the audience followed along in their recipe books. Samples were passed out for tasting and free recipe books were provided to everyone, compliments of Southern Kitchens' national sponsors.

Prizes of flowers from Carroll's Florist, 15 per cent discount on wallpaper from House of Carpet, crock pot from Big K, General Electric portable mixer from TG..Y, woman's handbag from the Shoe Box, Super-Shooter from Wal-Mart, frying machine from Osco, two pieces of no-stick cookware and kitchen tool set from J.C. Penney, a set of Corning Ware from Homestead, Gourmet kitchen tools from Otasco, Vita-Saver from Moore's Ace Hardware and a Silverstone Skillett from Britts were awarded to members of the audience.

When all the recipes were completed and dishes washed, the lights went off, tables came down, the model kitchen was disconnected and the suitcases were repacked as the team headed to Alabama and Texas.

And to another cooking school somewhere in the South.

Special thanks go to the Girl Scouts and their leaders, Mrs. Patty Stamp and Mrs. Sue Thompson.

Phyllis Young adds the final touches to a cooking school recipe.

Youth held for theft

A 16-year-old Poplar Bluff youth was taken into custody Thursday afternoon after he allegedly took $194 from a cash box at Tupperware Home Parties, 121 Smith St., according to the Public Safety Department.

Officers said the youth was riding in a Dr. Pepper delivery truck that had stopped at the building. He was in the office and asked an employe for a drink of water.

The employe went to the back of the building to get some water and the boy drank the water and left. At that point the employe discovered the money missing from the cashbox that had been sitting on a desk.

Officers found the delivery truck at the Quick Chek Market, 709 Smith St. They also found $154 hidden in the youth's sock and $40 hidden in the cab of the truck.

The youth was turned over to juvenile authorities.

EP okays obscenity law

EAST PRAIRIE— An ordinance defining obscenity and designed to abolish the sale of obscene literature within the city was adopted Thursday night by the City Council.

The council had discussed adoption of a new ordinance at meetings in recent months and were petitioned at the August meeting by a four-member committee to take immediate steps to ban the sale of obscene literature.

Material is obscene if, considered as a whole, its predominant appeal is to prurient interest, that is, a shameful or morbid interest, in nudity, sex or excretion and if in addition it goes beyond customary limits of candor in describing or representing such matters, according to a partial definition of obscene in the new ordinance.

The ordinance also states that no person shall knowlingly sell, deliver or provide any obscene writing, picture, record or other representation or embodiment of the obscene .... publish, exhibit or otherwise make available any obscene material.... or possess any obscene material for the purpose of sale or other commercial dissemination.

Violation of any part of the new ordinance may result in a punishment by fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment not to exceed three-months or by both fine and

11 injured in area accidents

Two persons were seriously injured and 11 others sustained minor injuries in a accidents Thursday and this morning on area roads, the highway patrol reported today.

In a one-car accident at 11:30 p.m. Thursday on Highway 25, one mile south of Jackson in Cape Girardeau County, Marty Lynn Illers, 24, of Jackson suffered serious injuries and was taken to the St. Francis Medical Center in Cape Girardeau.

The patrol said the accident occured when Illers was driving south at a high rate of speed, ran off the road and struck a large rock at a private residence and overturned several times.

Linda Jean Keirsey, 18, of Dexter, driver of an eastbound car, sustained serious injuries at 3:15 p.m. Thursday when her car car struck a gasoline truck at the junctions of Highway 60 and FF, a half mile north of Essex.

The patrol said the accident occured when a gas truck driven south by Marion Myers, 39, of Dexter was stopped to let another vehicle pass and apparently did not see the Keirsey car pulled out and was struck in the right front by the Keirsey car.

Myers suffered minor injuries and both of the injured were taken to the Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Human Rights Commissioners are arriving

Missouri's Human Rights Commissioners from the state's 10 Congressional Districts began arriving in Sikeston today to prepare for the Community Forum Saturday.

Chairman Al Brooks, assistant city manager for Kansas City, will conduct a meeting at 7:30 tonight to transact monthly business.

The Saturday forum, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the community room of the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association, 820 North Main St., will break for an hour between 12 and 1 p.m., then continue its hearings as long as there are people to be heard.

Mrs. Keith Collins, commissioner from this 10th district, said the purpose of the forum is two-fold: To better inform the citizens of the Bootheel what are Missouri's human rights laws as they pertain to employment, housing and public accommodation; and secondly, to allow the commission an opportunity to hear the problems and concerns in these areas of Southeast Missourians.

Representatives from industry, city government, Southeast Missouri State University and other agencies have indicated a desire. The public is invited to come and listen, learn and speak so that the Missouri Commission on Hugman Rights can use its jurisdictional authority to better serve the people in Southeast Missouri.

Control board, CBs taken

A lighting control board worth $1,100 and four citizens band radios were reported stolen, according to the Public Safety Department.

A dimmer board worth $1,100 was taken from the attic of the Sikeston Activity Center sometime between 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and 2:20 p.m. Thursday.

David Kent Pierce, 909 Stanford Drive, reported a citizens band radio worth $60 taken from a pickup truck belonging to his brother, James Pierce III, of Lexington, Ky., while the truck was parked on Stanford Drive.

Ronald Eaker, 1013 Davis Blvd., reported the theft of a citizens band worth $75 from his car between 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

Joseph Fabick, 201 College Ave., reported the theft of a citizens band from his company car, parked at his home between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday.

No value was given for the radio.

Jerry Yates, 121 Holmes St., reported the theft of a citizens band radio Thursday from his car while it was parked in his garage. The value of the radio was valued at $129.

Zoning issue not dead

J.R. James, 733 Goodhope St., A real estate broker, who debated with the City Council Tuesday night about his request to rezone Goodhope St. said he wanted the street rezoned from single family to multiple family.

The story in Wednesday's edition of the Daily Standard incorrectly listed the requested rezoning as commercial.

The issue may come up again at the Sept. 20 Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

Two petitions have been presented to the city concerning the zoning of the Taylor and Hunter Street area immediately south of Goodhope St.

One of the petitions favors rezoning the area from multiple family to single family and the other favors keeping the area zoned multiple family.

THE QUIETER AMERICANS

The words of a once-popular song, of a vintage older than we care to remember, admonished: "Milkman, keep them bottles quiet!"

The early-morning milkman, of course, is a vanished part of Americana, along with his noisy glass bottles (not to mention the thick cream that used to float on top). But all manner of old and new aural disturbances to urban tranquility continue to plague us.

Fortunately, we no longer need complain in song; there's somebody who can keep the "milkman" quiet. Who else but the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency?

In the latest of a series of measures designed to reduce the ear pollution that assails Americans, the EPA has just proposed regulations governing trash collection trucks.

Specifically, the rules apply to the large compactors mounted on garbage trucks and call for a noise reduction in their operation of 50 per cent by 1982. Presumably, trash handlers would still be free to bang garbage cans against the sides of the trucks and against the street, curb, driveway or what have you.

The EPA has laready issued or proposed noise control regulations for portable air compressors, bulldozers and small and medium trucks. Coming up soon, it says, are rules for buses, motorcycles, pavement breakers, rock drills and lawnmosers.

Some day it will be so quiet in America you'd be able to hear a milk bottle drop — if anybody was delivering one.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

LOANS TO THE SOVIET BLOC
BY PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

If the United States cannot afford the new B-1 bomber to replace our 15-year-old B-52s, nor afford any more Minuteman missiles or Poseidon submarines, how can the Soviet Union afford to build more new bombers, missiles and submarines than the United States?

The answer is that the United States and other Western nations have loaned the USSR and six Soviet satellites more than $49 billion since 1970. Ths money that these Communist countries would have had to spend for food and factories goes instead for huge armies, navies and weapons.

The Soviet Union and its satellites have annual trade deficits, and they get larger every year. In 1973, the Soviet block trade deficit was estimated at $3.5 billion. By 1976, it had risen to almost $10 billion. This trade deficit has been financed by loans from the West: supplier credits, government credits, and issues on the Western money and capital markets.

Bankers and trade officials are worried not only about the size of these deficits but about the way they have been accelerating. New loans have recently been running at the rate of $1 billion per month. Prof. Richard Portes of London University calculates that if the present rate of borrowing continues through 1980, the cumulative Soviet debt will stand at $100 billion.

Financial experts usually caution that it is risky to lend to a country whose existing debt requires 18 to 20 per cent of its hard currency earnings to service. Debt servicing already requires 26 per cent of the Soviet Union's hard currency export earnings and 30 per cent of Poland's.

There are some indications that Western banks are becoming apprehensive about making further large-scale loans. They have discovered, however, that the Communists are uncooperative in providing the detailed credit information that banks customarily demand from American borrowers.

The Soviets are now trying to get Western creditors to take "barter" agreements, or agreements to take payment in the form of future production, or even merchandise that the Communist nations can't sell to anyone else.

East Germany and Poland are trying to pay 40 per cent of their import bills with this barter-type approach.

One trouble with this is that Communist-produced goods often have to be dumped at cut-rate prices. This causes both losses and vigorous protests from businesses and labor unions in West European countries where the merchandise is dumped.

The federal government, as a result of our State Department's policy of detente, has encouraged loans to Communist countres. There is a big difference, however, between ordinary commercial loans and loans to Communist countries. Loans to private corporations and to individuals can be se secured by mortgages and foreclosed when default occurs.

The huge $49 billion in loans made to seven Communist countries are extremely hazardous because they are not secured by anything. There is no way to foreclose a loan to a Communist government.

The Communist record for repaying loans is not inspiring. Russia paid back only about 5 per cent of the $11 billion we loaned to it during World War II.

The big mystery is, why do Western banks finance communism? Why have they loaned $18 billion to the Soviet Union, $10.8 billion to Poland, $6 billion to East Germany, $3.3 billion to Hungary, $2.8 billion each to Bulgaria and Romania and $2.1 billion to Czechoslovakia?

Congress should investigate why our government encouraged our bankers and businessmen to grant loans whichh not only greatly strengthen the Soviet Union, but enable the Kremlin to shift its resources into its nuclear weapons-building program.

The Friendship Force is an excellent idea. President Carter launched it at a conference of state governors and it was chartered on March 14 this year, but the first implementation takes place, appropriately, at the time of writing, which is Independence Day weekend.

The Force operates as a series of multination people-to-people exchange visits, wherein ordinary citizens will become ambassadors of goodwill by spending at least four and up to eight days in the home of a host or hosts in the country visited, participating in their family life, even sharing their workload, and generally learning the habits and the thought forms of the country, as well as communicating information about life in tthe United States. At least four days are to be spent in the home of a host, after which, according to arrangement, the visitor can either go into the home of another host or make personal arrangements to tour the country.

Since this is an exchange arrangement, the plane which takes the USA visitors across the seas will on its return journey bring visitors to the United States, where the same arrangement will obtain. Since the exchange visits occur at the same time, the respective "ambassadors" will have arranged with their friends for the accommodation of their exchange partners.

This is not a cheap alternative to tourism. The ambassadors have a mission to fulfill. Consequently, the destination of the exchange will not be made known at the initial stages of an ambassador's programming. Each person who participates as a traveler pays his or her own way, though in special circumstances some assistance can be secured. The cost will be $250 a person for a 10-day involvement, two days being taken for traveling time.

Educational programs will be arranged for the travelers about five to six months before the actual exchange, with one or more mandatory workshops for hosts and ambassadors. The programs will include study groups, classes, lectures, educational TV programs, and seminars designed to familiarize participants with the history, religion, government, culture, climate, language and customs of the nation in which the exchange city is located.

Mrs. Rosalynn Carter will serve as honorary national chairperson of the Friendship project, which has already been accepted by a wide variety of countries, butrthe undertaking is not government controlled or financed; it is a nonprofit organization, of which the Rev. Wayne Smith of Decatur, Ga., a former missionary in Brazil, is the president and Wade Seal is the executive director. Those interested should communicate with them at 575 Omni International, Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

By 1980 when the Friendship Force is fully under way, approximately 500,000 persons will be participating in the program. A goal of six 'Friendship' flights is being planned between July 4 and December 31, 1977; the goal for 1978 is 30 states and countries, with all states participating by 1980.

On the first flight, July 4, to Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, a city recently visited by President Carter, Mrs. Major Houston Ellis of the Southern Territory is a traveler and Mr. and Mrs. Alf Dixon of Newcastle will be staying in the home of Major and Mrs. Edward Laity of Atlanta.

We repeat: the Friendship Force is an excellent idea. It recognizes that to understand a country and its people, it is not enough to stay in a hotel (which is a very unreal place, largely unvisited by the inhabitants) and to try to "do" Europe in a couple of weeks. Visitors to Newcastle-upon-Tyne will not understand the habits or outlooks of the whole of England, for the counties of England each have subtle differences, just as Manhattan dwellers differ from those of Minneapolis or Miami.

But coming close to people means that some generic, cultural and historic matters are understood a little better. What has to be avoided is the categorical attitude that our way is best. Every country, every person in that country, has something to tach us, and with understanding comes appreciation of a deeper kind than the effusive "jut great." A sympathy which can develop into empathy—the world sorely needs this today.

RIGHTS VIOLATIONS IN INDONESIA

Editor's Note: Following a report by Amensty International that said that in Indonesia there were 55,000 to as many as 100,000 persons who since 1965 had been held in prison without charge or trial and a campaign by Amnesty International, USA, the Indonesian government announced a program for the release of its political prisoners.

Adm. Sudomo said that 30,934 prisoners remained in custody (after the Dec. 1, 1976 release of 2500 prisoners). He said that 10,000 of the remaining category B prisoners (those against whom there is insufficient evidence for a trial) would be released in 1977, 10,000 in 1978 and the remainder in 1979. The trials of all Category A prisoners (those suspected of personal involvement in the "attempted coup" of 1965) would be completed by the end of 1978.

The government also made it clear that "transmigration" schemes, involving mass transportation of "released" prisoners to permanent resettlement camps such a Buru Island would continue.

Amnesty International's International Secretariat in London has consistently challenged the statistics on political prisoners given by Indonesian government officials. In the past, these figures have seriously underestimated the magnitude of imprisonment and the most recent official announcement of 30,934 political prisoners still in prison in Indonesia is no exception. This figure takes into account only A and B Category prisoners held in established detention centers in large cities. There are a great number of other political prisoners.

Amnesty International has made repeated requests of the Indonesian government for an official list of all prisons with the exact number of detainees held in each. The government has described these requests as "unfair," and to date no list has been provided. Even on the basis of the government's admitted figures, there unquestionably exists a condition of a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights in Indonesia.

The United States section of Amensty International views the program of "releases" announced by Adm . Sudomo on Dec. 1, 1976, as a distinct progression in the policy of the Indonesian government towards its political prisoners. Nevertheless, the three-year delay for completion of the "release" plan is totally unacceptable by normal international standards. This is all the more the case in Indonesia where many thousands have already suffered detention without charge or trial for up to 12 years. They should not be forced to endure for another day the harsh conditions of prison or separatrion from their families.

Amnesty International, USA is also wholly opposed to the enforced resettlement plan as announced in the prison release program. People in detention who have no choice about transmigration cannot, as the government has implied, be equated with free people who can decide for themselves whether or not to be transmigrated. Forced exile to a distant and harsh location does not constitute a "release" of political prisoners. The transmigration program should be canceled, and prisoners who have already been transported to Buru island should be set free and permitted to return to their homes. --

POVERTY LEVELS

A new schedule has been issued by the federal government determination of who is, and who is not poor.

If your cash income falls below a certain figure for your size family, you are classed as poor, and eligible for certain aid. If above that figure, you are not.

There is nothing wrong with the figures, or with their issuance. The only fact with which most people take issue is that the determinationn is based on income only, and does not include assets.

For instance, a farmer or town dweller in Monroe County might own property worth thousands, but if he or she failed or refused to make that property produce any income, that person could still be included in the poverty group.

For instance, a farmer or town dweller in Monroe County might own property worth thousands, but if he or she failed or refused to make that property produce any income, that person could still included in the poverty group.

Most people believe that assets as well as cash income should be taken into account in any determination of who is poor and who is not.

What's Wrong with Big Business Making a Real Profit?

By William E. Simon
Former Secretary of the Treasury

But that's exactly what we've been doing in this country over the past 15 years or more, putting business on the rack, and the fellow who has suffered most has not been the pinstriped executive but the worker trying to meet a mortgage and keep hamburger on the table.

Take a look at the Dow Chemical experience in California. A few years ago, Dow decided to build a $500-million petrochemical complex about 40 miles from San Francisco. The project was to open up 1,000 new construction jobs to build the plants and another 1,000 jobs later to operate them.

But then Dow began navigating the maze of governmental regulations designed to protect us fron the alleged abuses of big business. Everywhere it turned, Dow found its path blocked by demands from government bureaucrats that new clearances be obtained.

Eventually, the company was forced to apply for no less than 65 different governmental clearances, mostly environmental, at a cost to the corporate treasury of some $2 million. And even then, two years later, only five applications had been processed; the other 60 were still clogged in governmental papermills. Frustrated and exhausted, Dow finally threw in the sponge this past January, announcing that it no longer planned to build in California.

Some may argue that it doesn't really matter because Dow represents big business, and it is only getting what it deserves. Some may even argue -- and they have -- that America is better off anyway when we have zero economic growth. But I would submit that the insane governmental burdens placed on Dow Chemical really penalized working people: 2,000 of them were in fact cheated out of new job opportunities.

As outrageous as the Dow experience was, we ought to wake up to the fact that in subtle but significant ways, government is stifling private enterprise all across the nation, and the victims time and time again are middle-income people -- people with incomes in the $10-20,000 range. How?

First, through tax policies that discourage new investment and greater productivity. The U.S. imposes heavier taxes on corporations than almost any other major industrialized nation; indeed, we are one of the only remaining industrial powers that still taxes corporate profits twice, once at the corporate level and again at the stockholder level. Indeed it's this and other counterproductive and irresponsible government policies that help to explain why U.S. capital investments and U.S. productivity gains have been the lowest of any major industrialized democracy including Great Britain in recent years and why other nations are winning away our customers -- as well as our jobs.

Second, through spending policies that pile up enormous deficits, drive up consumer prices, and ultimately reduce employment opportunities. Over the past decade, the U.S. has recklessly doubled the national debt, contributing to the worst inflation and recession in more than a generation.

Third, through regulatory policies that are tying business in knots and costing consumers as much as $130 billion a year. Just last year, the government added almost 60,000 pages to the Code of Federal Regulations, and the flow continues unabated in the Carter administration. Government regulations and controls have also become the chief obstacle to the urgently needed growth of our energy industries.

And fourth, through erratic, stop-and-go fiscal and monetary policies in Washington. No businessman can confidently plan for the future in such an unpredictable, hazardous environment.

It is sheer demagogery for political leaders to preach that business is the enemy of working people. In fact, the two are inextricably bound together.

When business suffers at the hands of government, as it has so dramatically in recent years, workers also suffer. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor for nearly 40 years, put the issue well: "The worst crime against the working people," he said, "is a company that fails to make a profit." Nor should we forget that, since his day, the growth of employe pension funds has given workers even greater interest in the profits of private companies.

Free enterprise may be a dirty word in the salons of the social elite today, but working people have a direct, immediate stake in the success of the free enterprise system. When that system is undermined by overpaid bureaucrats, when the freedom to produce is destroyed by the non-producers, and when the loss of economic freedom is accompanied by the loss of political freedom -- as it always is -- then the working man ought to be the first one up on the barricades, defending his right to earn a decent living.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hunt, Liddy Only Me To Hallucinate

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON -- The muckracker wants to be liked. He pictures himself not as a resented troublemaker but as an affable, benevolent figure, and instrument of civic betterment. He assumes that even his victims recognize that he is just doing his job and that his job has something to do with the larger welfare.

Moreover, the most abrasive reporter is apt to be, in his personal life, a thin-skinned fellow, terribly sensitive, easily desolated by the slightest criticism of himself of his work. And so it has been that under several administrations, reporters for this column have cavorted nonchalantly through private files and public reputations, confident that our altruism was generally recognized.

It came as a bit of a shock, therefore, to hear that the incomprehensible Watergate pair, E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, had plotted my liquidation. Hunt hastened to explain that they did not intend to do me in but merely to cause my irredeemable public disgrace.

We have now obtained evidence that Hunt's version, apparently, is quite correct. He had in mind nothing so base as putting out my lights forever; all he sought to do was make me an involuntary subject of the C-IA's MK ULTRA-DELTA research. This was the secret behavioraltering program that sent the unfortunate Dr. Frank Olson diving to his death through a New York City hotel window.

Hunt got his motivation, whether by osmosis or otherwise, from Richard Nixon who used the formidable resources of the federal government to discredit us. Ex-White House aide Charles Colson has testified that he was asked "many times" by President Nixon to take action "to discredit Jack Anderson."

To this end, the CIA assigned 18 radio cars to keep us under surveillance. The Pentagon, according to its former security chief, W. Donald Stewart, conducted at least 11 separate investifations of us, sparing no expense. The FBI secretly grabbed our telephone records, and the Internal Revenue Service conducted a penetrating, year-long audit of my finances.

This should have been intimation enough that someone in the White House didn't like us, but we never dreamed our popularity had fallen so low that two White House heavies would seek exotic CIA poisons to use against us. The full details are worth relating, as a footnote to the history of the Nixon era.

Even in the balmy days before Watergate, we later learned, the irrepressible Liddy, revolver at the ready, had prepared to do a "wipeout number" on me. Chance intervened, and Liddy was persuaded that the hit order had been a misunderstanding.

I recall being a bit unnerved over Liddy's assumption that my elimination was a self-evident desideratum that would add to the sum of human happiness. But the plotting against me became less personal until Hunt blew in with a plan.

As Charles Colson remembered it, Hunt came to his office with "some hare-brained schemes, something to do with drugging Jack Anderson." As Hunt remembered it, Colson was the instigator. He called Hunt, told him I was "a great thorn in the side of the president" and asked Hunt to find a means to discredit me.

Hunt, unfailingly empathetic with the seemier necessities of statecraft, assumed that Colson was reflecting the desires of the chief executive" or that, as a prescient staff officer, "was attempting to find a solution to a problem that was troubling his chief."

As at other times of national emergency, this was the signal for Hunt to call in Liddy. Together they called on a former CIA physician, Dr. Edward Gunn, who, Hunt said, "had some knowledge of the unorthodox administration of behavior-changing or altering substances."

Dr. Gunn later testified about the Hunt-Liddy meeting: "I was asked if I could help them provide hallucinating medications to an individual."

The purpose, Hunt explained, was "to find out something about hallucinogenic drugs and their applications to a particular individual, in this instance Jack Anderson."

In the end, the project was dropped, but press reports told of a plot to "assassinate syndicated columnist Jack Anderson." The plan involved "use of a poison to be obtained from a former CIA physician" which "would leave no trace during a medical examination or autopsy."

These were hard-to-dismiss words - "assassinate," "poison," "autopsy" -- which hung in the mind, causing me to feel cooly toward Hunt and Liddy. We, meanwhile, continued to make our furtive rounds of file cabinets, but with a more uneasy step.

Now CIA disclosures of its mind-altering experiments tend to vindicate Hunt's claim that he meant me no worse than that I hallucinate while driving to the TV studio, there to make an alltime idiot of myself.

We occasionally wonder whether, en route, the subject might have driven off the bridge or like Dr. Frank Olson jumped out a window. We are sure that Hunt would answer: "unavoidable minimal risks are involved in the service of principalities."

Still, it puts a better face on the business. Our old insouciance has already returned, and we feel a lot kindlier toward those gallant buffoons who have so enlivened this decade.

Todays News In Brief

Better water records needed

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — A state official told representatives of rural and small city water systems that they are going to have to take more water samples and keep better record because of the federal Safe Drinking Water Act.

Everett Baker of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources spoke at a seminar Thursday attended by about 40 persons from local water systems in northwest Missouri. The act took effect June 24. Similar workshops are to be held in other parts of the state. Congress enacted the law in 1974.

Everett said its main effect on Missouri water systems is the additional man-hours that will be needed for taking and recording water samples.

Carter leaning to warheads

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter appears to be leaning toward the production of neutron warheads, but officials say he is delaying a decision because NATO allies are not anxious to publicly embrace the new weapons.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell had said in August that the President was likely to decide what to do about the weapons — neutron artillery shells and Lance missile warheads — early this month. A Pentagon memo, believed to be in support of the weapons, went to the White House on Aug. 15.

But one administration official said Thursday that Carter will not decide before late September. Another said the decision could come as late as October. Meanwhile, they said, the United States will consult further with its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies. Both officials asked not to be identified.

"The President feels the neutron bomb would be a useful and worthwhile weapon," one of the sources said. The source added that the NATO allies appear eager to have neutron weapons but are not ready yet "to take the political heat at home."

Teasdale snubs Ford banquet

DETROIT (AP) — Missouri Gov. Joseph Teasdale declined to join other governors in attending a banquet Wednesday hosted by Henry Ford II at the Ford family's 70-acre estate.

While governors were enjoying a multicourse dinner, the Missouri governor was eating a cheeseburger at a fast-food stand with Col. Al Lubker, head of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Asked why he did not attend, Teasdale replied: "Henry Ford and I have nothing in common."

The banquet was held for governors attending the National Governors Conference at Detroit.

Missouri faces Medicaid loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare plans to withhold $3 million in Medicaid payments to Missouri because of the state's failure to inspect nursing homes serving Medicaid patients.

Rep. Robert A. Young, DMo., said HEW officials informed him Thursday of the penalties.

Missouri is one of 14 states that will be penalized a total of $114 million in Medicaid payments starting Oct. 1, Young said.

The congressman said the penalty announcement is the second this year for Missouri for failure to comply with the inspection law.

The first announcement came in June, but Congress passed a law postponing enforcement of the penalties until October. State officials also took court action to temporarily block imposition of the penalty.

Young said HEW wrote to him, saying the state "has not made an acceptable showing" for the first six months of this year and will subsequently lose $3 million in payments Oct. 1.

But Young said he plans to work with lawmakers from other states to win passage of legislation to postpone enforcement of the penalties for another year.

An extra year, he said, would give the Missouri Division of Family Services enough time to hire additional personnel to comply with the inspection law.

Bid to cut aid may be renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sponsor of an amendment to cut U.S. aid to South Korea says he may try again to get the measure passed in the House unless rice dealer Tongsun Park is returned to the United States. The amendment sponsored by Rep. Bruce Caputo, R+N.Y., was defeated 205-181 on Thursday.

Banking practices to be eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a result of the controversy over Budget Director Bert Lance's private financial dealings, federal examiners want to see if other bankers are involved in questionable banking practices. John G. Heimann, comptroller of the currency, told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee on Thursday that he had ordered the national investigation into banking procedures as a result of the allegations involving Lance.

Canal pact foes map strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The campaign by conservatives against the new Panama Canal treaties is beginning to crystalize as foes of the pact push to get public opinion against Senate ratification. Sources said the anti-treaty drive will be three-pronged, emphasizing the human rights record of Panama's strongman, Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos, the security of the canal and the financial arrangements between the United States and Panama.

Radio avoids mention of Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Radio Uganda made no mention today of President Idi Amin's condition despite a report Thursday from one of his chief aides that the Ugandan dictator was in a coma after undergoing surgery. The main item on the government's first news broadcast of the morning reminded the public that "15 Ugandans will be executed in public today by firing squad at the clock tower in Kampala," the Ugandan capital.

Moslems report Israel

HASBAYA, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese Moslems in this former Palestinian stronghold near the Israeli border say Israel is threatening them with destruction unless they cooperate with it. Officials and other residents of predominantly Moslem towns and villages in the shadow of Mt. Hermon report that Israeli officials across the border have issued several warnings recently.

CIRCUIT COURT

CHARLESTON--A Mississippi County Circuit Court jury Tuesday ruled in favor of the defendant, Charles Whittenburg, in a personal injuries nad damage suit filed by Charles C. Hatley in a change of venue case from New Madred County.

The suit stemmed from an accident Feb. 8, 1974 on Route 162 in New Madrid County. Whittenberg was the driver of a pickup truck thatbacked from a private driveway onto Route 162. Hatleys car struck the truck. The suit had sought $20,000 indamages.

James E. Martin of East Prairie, charged with two counts of statutory rape, and Jim Reynolds of East Prairie, charged with one count of statutory rape, pleaded guilty to amended charges of contributing to the deliquency of a minor by causing said child, a 14-year old East Prairie girl, to engage in sexual activities. Presentencing investigations were ordered in both cases and Martin and Reynolds are to report back to court Sept. 30.

The trial of G.B. Johnson of East Prairie, charged with two counts of statutory rape, was reset for Oct. 12.

Dear Ann Landers

Salaries poor for troopers?

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column someone complained about the state troopers in Connecticut and Massachusetts not being on the job. The person who wrote said he was traveling from Boston to Hartford, Conn., at 55 miles an hour and umpteen cars passed him. I can't answer for Connecticut, but I can tell you where the Massachusetts state troopers are. Since they have not received a raise in salary since 1969, they are probably out working an extra detail to pay for a home or their kid's education.

So. blow that out your barracks bag, Annabelle. -- Also Disgruntled

Dear Grunt: Sorry, Buster. I checked with Boston's able mayor, Kevin White, and double-checked with that great governor of Connecticut, Ella Grasso. Their responses knocked your "facts" crank-sided.

Mayor White reported that in December of 1973, the Massachusetts state troopers' base pay was increased to $10,327 with a maximum of $12,745 after six years of service. At this moment arbitration is going on relevant to a future contract which will include another increase. Hopefully by the time this letter appears in print, they will have received it.

Ella Grasso reported that in 1969, the Connecticut state troopers earned $7,760 and they now earn $13,166. This means they have had seven raises in an eight-year period. Next time, before you tell anyone to blow it out their barracks bag, make sure you know what you're talking about.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this problem, and suggest a solution.

I am planning a celebration and want to invite the whole family -- both sides. My niece has been disowned by her father and he doesn't want her to even know where he lives. His sister shares his resentment. I love this girl who has done nothing to me. I also love her dad. I want her at this affair. I want her dad, too. If I do not invite her, I will feel like a hypocrite.

Thank you for any help you can give me. I read your column every day. -- Torn And Tormented

Dear T. and T.: Landers' Law Pertaining to Relatives at War is as follows: Invite whoever you want. Anyone who says, "I won't come if you ask So- and -So," should be told, "Sorry . . . we'll miss you."

Dear Ann: I love flowers and plants and have cultivated a breathtakingly beautiful fern. It is very large and frilly. Why do some people feel they must run their hands through a plant? It injures and breaks the fronds. A fern (or any other specimen of flora for that matter) does not like to be handled.

May I add my own 11th Commandment? "Thou shalt not fondle thy neighbor's fern, nor her cat nor her dog, nor her husband, nor anything else that belongs to her." – Irked In Illinois

Dear Irked: Here's your letter. Clip it and tack it up near your fern. And lots of luck, honey.

CONFIDENTIAL to Recently Split and Needing Help: Get "Living and Loving After Divorce," by Napolitane and Pellegrino. (Publisher Rawson.) This book deals with bringing up children alone, where and how to meet men, job-tips for the divorcee and how to get along with an ex-husband. It will give you courage -- and good guidelines.

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." MU-USC battle highlights Big 8

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight opens its 1977 season Saturday in a manner befitting its reputation as the No. 1 college football conference in America.

Missouri, picked fourth in the Big Eight by conference Skywriters, hosts Southern Cal, the favorite in the Pac-8; Kansas, tabbed last in the Big Eight, travels to Texas A&M, a favorite in the powerful Southwest Conference, and Oklahoma State, expected to do no better than sixth in the Big Eight wars, is at Tulsa, a co-favorite in the Missouri Valley.

Most other conference teams expect an easier time Saturday. No. 1 Oklahoma is home against Vanderbilt, Nebraska hosts Stanford, Iowa State entertains Wichita State and Kansas State is at Brigham Young.

The USC-Missouri clash, expected to draw a record home-opening crowd to Faurot Field, is being called the Revenge Bowl. The upset-happy Tigers stunned USC last September by dumping the Trojans, 46-25, in Los Angeles.

Regrouping, the Trojans zipped unbeaten through the rest of the schedule and whipped Michigan in the Rose Bowl, winding up No. 2 in the final Associated Press poll, convinced the Missouri loss cost them a national championship.

"I think every opener's special," says USC Coach John Robinson, "but certainly when you play a team as good as Missouri in their home town where the fans are very rabid, it makes it even more special.

"Our embarrassment last year was almost as much by our hands, however, as by Missouri's. We played such a poor game, and they played an outstanding game."

For USC, it was as though 1976 was divided into two seasons: the Missouri game, and the other eleven.

It was the most lopsided opening-day loss in the school's proud gridiron history, dating to 1888. Missouri scored 46 points...the Trojans' next 11 opponents totaled only 93. Missouri had four touchdown plays covering 24 yards or longer...the rest of the year, the USC defense suffered only two touchdown plays longer than nine yards.

Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott remained a question mark for the Vanderbilt opener, nursing a sore knee. But Sooner fans may witness the emergence of a new Big Red star with the long-awaited debut of halfback Billy Sims, the Hooks, Tex., sophomore with epic press clippings.

Sims, the No. 2 rusher in Texas high school history, moved to the first team this week after a two-year bout with injuries.

The customary sellout mob at Nebraska's Memorial Field will see the unveiling of a brand new scoreboard, a new Astroturf, and the return of a raft of former Husker assistants who migrated to Washington State last year. Warren Powers, WSU head coach, was a long-time aide to Nebraka boss Tom Osborne.

"I'm sure that Warren will have them prepared to their optimum, so we are expecting a very good football team in Washington State," said Osborne.

Brigham Young was the only team Kansas State beat last year, and after the 13-3 victory, Wildcat Coach Ellis Rainsberger said, "a team has to do two of three things to be successful. We had two of them, our defense and kicking game."

Hope for bigger crappie on Lake Wappapello

The Conservation Department is trying for that not-so-silly 76 millimeters longer on crappie in Lake Wappapello by lowering the daily crappie limit to 10, effective January 1. Possession remains 60, as it is statewide, except that an angler may not have more than 10 crappie while on the lake.

"If the experimental reduction doesn't cause an increase in the average length in two or three years," says Fred Vasey,crappie biologist for the Department, "'we'll take it off.

"On the other hand, we think it will move the average length of crappie from less than nine inches up to our goal of 12 inches."

Vasey said a length limit has been considered, but it was felt to be to orestrictive. "We've been studying crappies in Missouri's large reservoirs for nine years," Vasey says. "Duri the last four or five years, we've become convinced that a reduction in harvest will improve the size and catch.

"Lake Wappapello is an ideal situation to test our theory. Crappie growth rates are good and most fish can live longer and get larger. Too many of them are taken before they have a chance to grow to their potential. Although crappie can live six to eight years,most in the lake and most caught are two or three years old."

Creel checks in 1976 showed that 90 per cent of the lake's anglers catch less than 10 crappie, so had the new regulation been in effect, it would have affected 10 per cent of those fishing--but the overall lake crappie creel would have gone down about 15 per cent, fish that would remain in the lake to grow larger.

As part of the planning for the new regulation, Department of Conservation fisheries managers mailed more than 2,400 letters to fishermen in the lake area and from St. Louis, which contributes heavy fishing pressure to the lake, and found about 90 percent favored a move to improve crappie fishing.

There is an experimental crappie regulation on the James River arm of Table Rock Lake--a daily limit of 10, plus a 10-inch minimum length.

The experiment was complicated and can't be fully evaluated because there was very poor crappie production in 1974-76, the years of the experiment.

"The James arm regulation was to protect the first good spawn we had...and we just had it," Vasey says. "It will take another couple of years to see what effect the regulation has."

Still, some 1973 fish remained in the lake in 1977, indicating the size and creel limits had an effect.

"Our only objective is to make fishing better for crappie anglers," Vasey says. "Sometimes it takes a little sacrifice now to result in better fishing later. The idea certainly isn't to penalize fishermen, but to make their sport better."

New crappie limit

Missouri will have a new experimental crappie limit of 10 daily on Lake Wappapello in an effort to increase average size of fish there from nine inches to 12 inches. Biologists feel there has been an overharvest of crappie on the lake, that most crappie caught are far short of their potential growth. (Department of Conservation photo)

Jaycee gridders to open Sept. 17

Missouri Fishing Report

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo (AP) — Fishing success has picked up in the southern and central streams, but most northern streams are up and muddy, the Missouri Department of Conservation said Thursday.

In its weekly fishing report the department said water temperatures were dropping—averaging in the upper 70s.

Lakes were in fair to good condition, with fishing success fair to poor.

Stream Conditions:

Chariton—muddy and normal with fishing poor.

Mississippi—upper muddy and high with catfish good. Middle, muddy and high with catfish and carp fair on set-lines. Lower, dingy with catfish, juggin and set-lines good.

Missouri—upper, muddy and high with fishing poor. Middle and lower also muddy and high with fishing poor.

Osage—above lake, muddy with catfish fair on set-lines. Below Bagnell Dam, dingy low crappie, catfish and white bass fair and carp good.

Meramec—upper, clear and low. Bass and catfish (on trotlines) good. Lower, dingy and normal with all species fair.

Duck Creek—clear and normal with crappie, bass and bluegill fair.

Big Piney—clear to dingy. Fishing poor.

Current—clearing to slightly dingy. Non-game fish good lower end and all other fishing poor to fair.

Black—upper clear to normal with fishing poor. Lower—clear to dingy with bass, goggle-eye and catfish good.

St. Francis—upper, slightly dingy with bass and panfish fair. Lower, dingy and low with fishing poor.

Stream Conditions:

Bull Shoals—Theodosia Arm, clear with catfish (on trotlines) fair to good with black bass good. Forsythe Arm—clear with channel cat, black bass and blue gill fair.

Taneycomo—clear and normal with trout fair. Bass fair to good and bluegill good lower end.

Cards, Chiefs ready to go

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs and the St. Louis Cardinals are both primed for the start of the 1977 National Football League season.

But first, there's that little matter of the Missouri Governor's Cup.

"It's going to be important for us to play well against St. Louis," says Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin of the Chiefs' annual preseason clash with the Cardinals.

"And it's important we are ready to take on a very good football team a week later when the real bullets start to fly."

A crowd of about 35,000 is expected Saturday night when the Chiefs and Cardinals tangle at Arrowhead Stadium to decide the best professional football team in Missouri.

The Chiefs own a 5-3 edge in the yearly battle, but the Cardinals have claimed the last two decisions since Wiggin took over the Kansas City reins in 1975.

St. Louis will be trying to finish its exhibition campaign at 2-4, after notching its first victory of the summer against Chicago, 23-14, last week.

"Those first four games are gone. I've already forgotten them," said Cardinals Coach Don Corvell, whose team opens the regular season Sept. 18 at Denver.

"The Cardinals you saw against the Bears are the real Cardinals. We're on the right track now but we had a little scare before we got there."

St. Louis will throw quarterback Jim Hart and running backs Terry Metcalf at Kansas City, which will counter with Mike Livingston, MacArthur Lane and Tony Reed.

The Chiefs, who travel to New England for their regular season opener, fell, 24-16, to the Atlanta Falcons last Monday but would finish the summer session at 3-3 with a victory over St. Louis.

Another Friday night awaits Fearless Panel (figure of speech)

Charlie "The Chief" Francis won the weekly prediction lottery (just a figure of speech) last time, nudging Dale "The Forb" Forbis by three measly points, 144 to 147. Rumor has it that the Chief will wait until he misses by less than an average of three touchdowns per call before he brags.

Needless to say, neophyte prediction man Micael "Whale" Marsh brought up the rear (another figure of speech), missing his eight picks by more than 170 points. Encouraged by the success, or lack of it, local sporting authority Cavid "The Zig" Ziegenhorn has volunteered his two cents worth. Unfortunately for Zig, that lastline was not a figure of speech.

DEXTER AT CHAFFEE– Voted by the panel members to be thegame of the week," this one should be tough – and close. Neither defense is expected toslow the opposing offense, so the fella keeping score hasbetter keep loose. The new man breaks from the fold right off, going with Chaffee and a mild upset.
CHIEF: Dexter by 4,
FORB: Dexter by 3,
WHALE: Dexter by 8,
ZIG: Chaffee by 6.

JACKSON ST FREDRICKTOWN – Jackson and Perryville are very comparable and Perryville beat this MAC outfit 32-zip last Friday. Look for coach Paul Webber to go to his deeper (than Perryville) bench sooner and keep the score just a little closer. This one was in the running for "rout of the week."
CHIEF: Jackson by 10,
FORB: Jackson by 21,
WHALE: Jackson by 17,
ZIG: Jackson by 16.

KENNETT AT MALDEN -- Kennett is trying to get back on the winning track under new coach. A lot of Indian players are back from last year's team. But they were 2-8, so is that good or bad? This matchup of Dunklin county squads was in the running for "crummy game of the week." Didn't make it.
CHIEF: Kennett by 14,
FORB: Kennett by 17,
WHALE: Kennett by 10,
ZIG: Kennett by 8.

STE. GENEVIEVE AT PERRYVILLE -- Ste. Genevieve's Warriors descend into the Pirates lair and they shouldn't.Perryville is loaded for bear -- and Warrior.
CHIEF: Perryville by 14,
FORB: Perryville by 14,
WHALE: Perryville by 14,
ZIG: Perryville by 16.

SPRINGFIELD-GLENDALE AT POPLAR BLUFF -- Annually this is a who cares" game for everyone in the district except those involved. This year is different. The game could go a long way toward telling the truth about a supposedly strong Mule team. The panel thinks the first game disappointment was just a fluke.
CHIEF: Poplar Bluff by 2,
FORB: Poplar Bluff by 12,
WHALE: Poplar Bluff by 7,
ZIG: Poplar Bluff by 6.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT DONIPHAN -- Caruthersville has one quarterback too many and one runner too few. It won't be enough to hold new coach Block's Tigers back against inexperienced Doniphan.
CHIEF: Caruthersville by 10,
FORB: Caruthersville by 16,
WHALE: Caruthersville by 10,
ZIG: Caruthersville by 14.

PRAIRIE AT ILLMO -SCOTT CITY– Winner by a point over Jackson-Fredricktown for the panel's choice as "rout of the week.". The Eagles are strong in the backfield, but weak on the line. That's fatal against a good team rams.
CHIEF: I-SC by 28,
FORB: I-SC by 30,
WHALE: I-SC by 28,
ZIG: I-SC by 24.

HAYTI AT SOUTH PEMISCOT – A split vote on whether 22 players will show. Hayti must win this "crummy game of the week" if they are to bounce back from setbacks in their program during recentyears. A scoreless tie would not surprise.
CHIEF: Hayti by 23,
FORB: Hayti by 18,
WHALE: Hayti by 14,
ZIG: Hayti by 8.

ST. VINCENTS-PERRYVILLE AT PORTAGEVILLE -- The Portageville team has some horses and the home field. Portageville a solid pick for a win.
CHIEF: Portageville by 7,
FORB: Portageville by 20,
WHALE: Portageville by 24,
ZIG: Portageville by 18.

SIKESTON AT ST. THOMAS -The initial vote was nearly unanimous for a one-point win. Then some of the panelists, who don't have a sense for the ironic, changed their picks to protect themselves in the prediction race. Aquinas lost big in its first outing and faces a bleak future after Sikeston, since they play Ladue and Vianney in the next two games. They realize a win is a must. The game is a big one for both teams.
CHIEF: Sikeston by 1,
FORB: Sikeston by 7,
WHALE: Sikeston by 14,
ZIG: Sikeston by 1.

Pirates rip Cardinals

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dave Parker says the race is over, and he's not talking about the run for the money in the National League East.

"I honestly think the batting title this year is mine," Parker said Thursday night after rapping two singles and a two-run homer to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Make that Rennie Stennett's and mine because he had an outstanding chance to win it himself before his tragic injury," Parker said, referring to the Pirate infielder recovering from a leg fracture.

Parker's three-for-four night raised his National League leading average to .350. Stennett's second at .336, and the closest active pursuer, Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons, stayed at .331 after going one-for-three.

"I very seldom go more than two games in a row without a hit, and really don't see why it should change," said Parker, whose two-run homer off Al Hrabosky came in the seventh inning when the Pirates scored three times to erase a 5-4 Cardinal lead.

The Pirates fell behind 5-1 when the Cardinals scored three unearned runs in the fourth with the help of an error by shortstop Frank Taveras and Ken Reitz' two-run single off Jim Rooker.

Pittsburgh pulled to within 5-4 with three fifth-inning runs off Bob Forsch. Parker, who singled and scored in the fourth, scored again in the fifth after a single.

Then came Hrabosky, the "Mad Hungarian" whose record has climbed from 2-4 to 6-5 since July 21 when he was given club permission to regrow his beard.

He was his old self as he faced Parker. Prior to his first pitch, he turned his back to the plate, stepped away from the mound and stopped to concentrate. Then he dramatically tossed the ball into his mit and went to work.

The first pitch was a ball. The next one went over the rightfield wall, Parker's 19th homer.

Al Oliver singled home another run later in the inning off Hrabosky. Taveras added an RBI-single in the eighth off Pete Falcone.

"I don't mind what Hrabosky does out there," said Parker. "I think it's good for baseball."

Yet it was a special homer for Parker. "I'd never hit one off him," he said. "Now he's in my book."

Porter stays hot

SEATTLE (AP) — Darrell Porter of the Kansas City Royals has bid a fond farewell to the Kingdome.

"I'd be crazy if I said I'm glad to leave it," Porter said Thursday night. "I've always been a streak hitter, but I've never had two games like this."

For the second night in a row he socked two home runs, pushing his total for the year to 15, and collected four hits, leading the Royals in a 7-2 victory over Seattle to sweep a four-game series with the Mariners. Kansas City now has won nine straight and 20 of its past 23 games.

"Those two Porter hit would have been out anywhere," Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog said. "A fly ball's a thrill here."

The first time the Royals visited Seattle, they won three of four games but hit only one home run. This time they hit 12.

The Royals got all but one of their runs Thursday night on home runs, including John Mayberry's 21st, a two-run shot in the ninth inning; Frank White's fifth in the seventh, and Hal McRae's 18th in the third. The other Kansas City run scored on a fifth-inning single by Al Cowens.

The Mariners got their other run in the fourth when Julio Cruz' groundball skipped by Kansas City third baseman George Brett for an error, scoring Lee Stanton. Steve Braun tried to score from second on the play but was thrown out by left fielder Joe LaHoud.

In the next inning, Seattle leftfielder Dave Collins cut down McRae trying to score on a short fly ball. McRae spiked Seattle catcher Bob Stinson, who required eight stitches in his right hand. He'll be out atleast a week, Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson said.

"It's the dirtiest play I've seen in 15 years," Johnson said.

McRae visited the Mariners clubhouse after the game to see Stinson, but Johnson said "that's like shooting your mother-in-law and saying your sorry."

"We go out there trying to win," he said. "I'm not worrying about complete games and strikeouts."

Mrs. Howington gets first ace

NEW MADRID--Sikeston golfer Evelyn Howington scored her first hole-in-one Saturday as she and her husband Bill won the doubles tournament at the New Madrid Country Club.

Mrs. Howington used a six iron as she aced the par 3 18th hole. Witnesses were Florence and Ben Caple of New Madrid and Bill Howington, her husband-partner.

The Howington's were champions in Class A.

New UMC Alumni Center

COLUMBIA——The $1 million Alumni Center of the University of Missouri—Columbia will be dedicated Friday. Gov. Joseph Teasdale will participate in the ceremonies scheduled for 10 a.m. on the center's south lawn. UMC Alumni Association president Doris England of St. Louis will present the symbolic key to the building to UMC Chancellor Herbert W. Schooling. Remarks also will be made by University Board of Curators president Rex Williams of Rolla and by UM president James C. Olson. Shuttle buses will transport guests from the Hearnes and Faurot Field parking areas to the Alumni Center at 9 and 9:40 a.m. The buses will leave from the southeast corner of the Hearnes Building and will pick up additional passengers at parking gate number one at Faurot Field. Informal tours of the new facilities will be available from 9 a.m. until the dedication ceremonies. The Alumni Center, located southwest of the campus adjoining the A.L. Gustin Golf Course, is the only major UMC building financed entirely by gift money. Some 1,600 contributions provided nearly $1 million for construction and furnishing of the center. The center is one of the few buildings in the nation designed exclusively for alumni and development fund activities. Offices of professional staff members are provided as well as meeting rooms for alumni affairs. The building has provided the setting for meetings of many groups from on and off the campus. In conjunction with the dedication, the Association will host a dinner Sept. 9 for donors who gave $1,000 or more to the building fund drive.

SANTA CRUZ SALAMANDER

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Sally is protected now.

Sally is a nickname for the endangered Santa Cruz long-toed salamander. The creature occupies only two spots in the world, Ellicott Pond and Valencia Lagoon, both in Santa Cruz County. The total population is about 10,000.

To protect her, the county board of supervisors has adopted an "SP" (salamander protection) district in which any construction must take into account the habits of the shy, slow-moving salamander. In such a district, all new curbs and gutters must be rounded; building sites must be made passable for salamanders; grading of Sally's habitat vegetation must be kept to a minimum and continous retaining walls longer than 100 feet must have gently sloped ramps for them.

"People are saying we must be joking when they learn of the requirements," said Robin Felburg, an associate planner for the county. "They tell us we are putting salamanders before people, but we felt we could preserve the salamander's habitat without unusual restrictions."

1. Fire extinguishers are marked indicating the class or classes of fires upon which they can be properly used. For what burning materials are the following fire extinguishers intended for use? Class A, Class B, Class C and Class D.
2. How do you properly operate a fire extinguisher?

ANSWERS

1. Class A—Wood, paper, cloth, rubber and some plastics.
Class B—Gasoline, grease, paraffin, flammable liquids, flammable gases.
Class C—Electrical equipment.
Class D—Combustible metals, such as sodium, magnesium, potassium, etc.
There is also a Class A,B,C—"all purpose" fire extinguisher, which is perfect for home use.
2. Operating instructions are clearly printed on the body of the extinguisher. Read them carefully before hand. In most cases you will be instructed to remove the pin, aim the extinguisher nozzle at the base of the fire, and squeeze the lever.

Praiseworthy or pushy

By JIM DRINKARD
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — In some of the mid-Missouri communities where he works, people just can't say enough nice things about Paul Lutz. But in other towns, the praise is less than whole-hearted.

Lutz is a community development specialist with the University of Missouri's extension program, who for 10 years has helped communities in a four-county area solve problems ranging from lack of housing for the elderly to inadequate water systems.

"We'd be lost without him," says Joe Davison, mayor of New Franklin. But Pete Steiner, a newspaper editor who heads a Vandalia businessmen's group which Lutz helped conduct a survey of shoppers, says the community development program sometimes has to scramble to justify its existence.

"There is this tendency for self-perpetuation. They can be perhaps a little pushy at times," Steiner said.

Other critics of the university's sprawling statewide extension programs have been more blunt, charging it with duplication, waste and being the product of "empire-building" by former University President C. Brice Ratchford.

A special commission appointed by Gov. Joseph Teasdale to look into the extension programs of Missouri's public colleges and universities begins a series of public hearings around the state Sept. 19 to hear testimony from extension's supporters and critics.

A survey of commission members shows the group is likely to look hardest at programs such as those run by Lutz and 35 other community development and local government specialists across the state. Agricultural, home economics and 4-H programs, extension's traditional functions, are likely to remain relatively unscathed.

"I would say that would have a certain amount of influence (on the commission's recommendations)," Melton said.

Of the twelve commission members, two are from urban areas. The group includes five state legislators who represent primarily rural districts, a farmer, an official of the Missouri Farm Bureau and the director of the Missouri Department of Agriculture.

The commission's chairman, Cordell Tindall of Fayette, is a vice president of a company which publishes farm magazines in Missouri and four other states.

The group was formed by the governor July 8 to "review and recommend changes that may be necessary in the scope, organization, management and funding of extension activities." During his gubernatorial campaign, Teasdale said he heard criticism of extension programs around the state.

Although the commission was charged with studying extension in all state higher education, it will concentrate primarily on the four-campus University of Missouri.

Tindall said the university is being singled out for special attention because of its conflicts with the legislature over this year's appropriations. It also operates by far the largest, most complex extension network in the state, with the equivalent of more than 1,300 full-time employes and a budget of more than $22 million.

Agricultural extension in Missouri dates back to 1914, when the University established outposts to fulfill its role, as a land-grant institution, of taking education to outstate Missouri.

The community development and academic aspects of the university's program began more than 40 years later, and mushroomed during the 1960s, when federal grants were available for almost any program an administrator could dream up.

Ratchford rode the burgeoning extension division to the top post at the university, and as president was extension's strongest advocate. His staunch defense of extension led to bitterness among some legislators, bitterness that surfaced during hearings about the university's budget requests earlier this year.

The legislature finally asserted control by isolating the extension budget from other university appropriations and refusing to increase its allocation over last year's amount — a move equivalent to a budget cut, when inflation is taken into account.

The extension program's confusing chain of command and budgeting methods baffled many legislators and some members of the commission. At one of its meetings, the commission heard an explanation of extension's structure and budget presented by analysts from the Missouri Department of Administration.

In addition to examining extension's top-heavy administrative structure, the commission will look into charges that extension programs often duplicate other, less expensive courses operated by local community colleges or high schools, and that courses in trivial subjects are paid for with state funds.

"The university teaches extension courses in Jefferson City that are the same as courses offered by Lincoln University," said Rep. Steve Vossmeyer, D-St. Louis, a commission member. "I think that's outrageous."

Other commission members cited extension coures in belly dancing, wine tasting and how to form a labor union as being of questionable value.

But the area that remains the "most suspect," said Chairman Tindall, is community development, which he said has mounted "quite a public relations program of their own" in his area.

"I just question the effectiveness of what they do. I don't question the need for it," Tindall said.

And Paul Lutz concedes that a little promotion may be needed for his activities. "Our philosophy has always been not to take credit for any of the things we do," he says. "But if people are in favor of this (community development extension) they ought to let the commission know."

Extension commission sets meeting schedule

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Joseph Teasdale's extension study commission has announced a schedule of public hearings around Missouri in September. All of the meetings begin at 7 p.m. on the dates shown in the following cities:

- Sept. 19, Student Union, Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville.
- Sept. 20, J. C. Penney Continuing Education Building, University of Missouri-St. Louis.
- Sept. 21, University Center Building, Southeast Missouri State University, Cape Girardeau.
- Sept. 22, Campus Union Building, Southwest Missouri State University, Springfield.
- Sept. 26, Warren E. Hearnes Learning Resources Center, Missouri Western State College, St. Joseph.
- Sept. 27, Westport Room, University Center Building, University of Missouri-Kansas City.
- Sept. 28, House Lounge, Capitol Building, Jefferson City.

Persons wishing to comment on extension services and their operation are invited to attend the hearings. Comments also may be mailed to the commission at P.O. Box 809, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Gun control poll

One of the major issues of the Carter administration is the quest for stricter gun control in the President's forthcoming crime control package. Reliable sources say that the 95th Congess and the Carter administration will be pushing for the control this year.

The questions provided below are for you to voice your own opinion on the gun control issue. Please answer each one and mail your response to the Daily Standard, 208 S. New Madrid, Sikeston, MO., 63801.

Responses will be tabulated and results of the poll will be published in the Daily Standard at a later date.

1. Should private ownership of Handguns be banned by federal law?
2. Should the sale of handguns be limited to two per person per year?
3. Should the sale of sporting guns be subject to stringent federal regulations?
4. Should gun owners be required to register their guns?
5. If guns are registered should the names and addresses of the registrants be made available to government agencies?
6. Do you belive the U.S. Constitution guarantees citizen ownership of handguns for personal protection?

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, September 9th, the 252nd day of 1977. There are 113 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1776, the term "United States" became official in a ruling of the Second Continental Congress.

On this date:

In 1830, Charles Durant made early aviation history by flying in a balloon from New York City across the Hudson River to Perth Amboy, N.J.

In 1850, California was admitted to the Union as the 31st state.

In 1893, the First Lady, Mrs. Grover Cleveland, became the mother of a baby girl. It was the first time that a child had been born to a first lady in the White House.

In 1919, Boston police went on strike. Massachusetts Governor Calvin Coolidge ruled that they would not be permitted to return to their jobs on grounds they had no right to strike and endanger public safety.

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Company was formed as a service of the Radio Corporation of America.

In 1946, the formal surrender of about 1 million Japanese soldiers took place in China, at Nanking.

Ten years ago: A 20-year-old Kansas woman, Debra Dene Barnes, was crowned the new "Miss America" in Atlantic City.

Five years ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger headed for Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders on European security.

lime trucks at 3:50 p.m. Thursday on Highway 21, six miles south of Doniphan in Ripley County, resulted in minor injuries to Mary Elizabeth Hoefer, 63, of Doniphan, a passenger in the pickup truck driven south by her husband, William L. Hoefer, 75, of Doniphan Route Four.

Mrs. Hoefer was taken to the Ripley County Memorial Hospital in Doniphan.

The patrol said the accident occured when Hoefer was slowing and attempted to make a right turn into a private drive was struck by a southbound lime truck driven by Lloyd Gambling, 32, of Fairdealing Route One, whose truck was then struck by another southbound lime truck driven by Charles S. Aldrich, 19, of Doniphan route one.

Gerry Joyner, 53, of Doniphan, a passenger in a car driven east by Marvin Franklin Pulliam, 54, of Doniphan, suffered minor injuries when the Pulliam car struck a dirt embankment.

The patrol reported the accident occured at 8:30 p.m. Thursday on Highway 160, two miles west of Fairdealing, when the eastbound Pulliam car met an oncoming vehicle on his side of the road and he ran off the road into a ditch and struck a dirt embankment.

Joyner was taken to Ripley County Memorial Hospital in Doniphan.

Eight persons, all of Chicago, received minor injuries in an accident at 5:15 a.m. today, two tenths of a mile north of Portageville on Interstate 55.

Injured was the driver of a southbound car, Patricia Ann Jackson, age unavailable, and seven passengers in the Jackson car, Eddie Murray, 30, Lovely L. Jones, 52, Ora Staples, 23, Shannon Jackson, 6, Patrece Murray, 7, Pajuan Murray, 9, and Shawnetta Murray, 6, all of Chicago.

The patrol said all of the injured received minor injuries and were taken to the Pemiscot Medical Center in Hayti.

The highway patrol said the Jackson woman said she was southbound, passing a semi-trailer truck, when the truck crossed the center line and struck her car in the right front.

The truck failed to stop and drove on, she said.

The council also adopted an ordinance setting the city's tax rate at $1.65 per $100 assessed valuation, the same rate as last year. A breakdown on the amount shows 75 cents will go into general revenue and the remaining 90 cents will be placed in two-separate general obligation bond funds, one 30 cents and the other 60 cents to pay off bond indebtness.

Lots one through 11 on Elbow Street in the Fletcher Addition were rezoned from residential to commercial by ordinance, as recommended by the planning and zoning commission. No objections were voiced during a recent public hearing on the proposed rezoning of the property owned by Hunt Wellborn.

The council approved a request from the Southeast Missouri Regional Crime Laboratory for $200 for the city's share in use of the facility for this year. In 1978 the city's share in the cost will be increased to $400 as federal funds will no longer be available.

A request for a $100 donation to assist in a grand opening celebration at the county airport on Oct. 2 was also approved.

Street paving and improvements brought a lengthy discussion without any definite action being taken. Blacktopping by the city street department has been considered for Folk Avenue and Shannon Street. The proposed project would cost over $11,000, according to City Administrator Frank Carter, who is to check statutes to determine if $1 per foot could be assessed residents along the two streets for street paving.

It was stressed by Alderman Jack Adkisson that it was his opinion that much-needed repairs along existing streets should be a top priority, noting there are some funds now on deposit gained from the city's one-cent sales tax and earmarked for street improvements.

It was pointed out by Mayor L.F. LaPlant Jr. that the city has spent over $39,000 for paving of Lombardy Drive and Pine Street in the past year and that without proper drainage, any repairs made would be only temporary.

Carter was authorized to purchase 50 water meters at a cost of $25 each and to check on the cost of chemicals for mosquito control next spring.

The need for walkie-talkies for the police department was brought up by Police Chief Jake Abner, who said existing radios were not working properly. The equipment is urgently needed, according to Abner, who stressed the need for the radios in the event another power outage such as that experienced earlier this week occurred.

Carter was authorized to have repairs made on the existing units for the present time until it is determined if the city can get new ones with assistance from the Bootheel Regional Law Enforcement Agency.

In other action, the council instructed the city attorney to draw up an ordinance pertaining to the regulations of a massage parlor; agreed to take applications for a city mechanic; approved the collector's report of $28,400.06 for August; Police judge report of $1,105.50 in fines; and disbursements of $11,253.48.

Overturned tanker spills gas in sewers

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — A gasoline transport truck overturned on a main street in this community at the southern tip of Illinois Thursday night, sending gasoline into the storm sewers and posing a fire hazard, authorities said.

But before midnight, a spokesman for the Alexander County Sheriff's Department said the problem had been solved.

State troopers in Cairo said they understood that the truck was loaded with 7,500 gallons of gasoline.

The sheriff's spokesman said the accident occurred near the county jail and prisoners were transferred to the Pulaski County Jail about seven miles away.

The name of the truck driver was not available immediately.

Theologian foresees downfall unless science admits limits

NEW YORK (AP) — Theology once reigned as "queen" of all intellectual disciplines, but it had to repent its predominating pretensions. Now, the overruling standard of thought is science. Does it, too, need to confess its inherent limitations?

Indeed, it does, says the Rev. Dr. Langdon Gilkey of the University of Chicago Divinity School.

He says the kind of absoluteness and sovereignty now claimed by science may lead to the kind of downfall and rejection suffered by religion for its past posture of authority over all truth.

"Queen religion," which held supreme sway over all fields of inquiry in the Middle Ages, was saved from total banishment only because theologians made a serious re-evaluation of it, he says, admitting its limitations.

As a result, it "has even undergone a recent resurgence and developed an appeal for modern man."

But the scientific method, he adds, still holds to its image of cultural supremacy as the sole source of valid information, but it, too, may be dethroned by the technological society it has created — and disappointed — unless it recognizes its limited, conditional role.

"Science and applied science — like every other aspect of human creativity — must learn to live and deal with the vast ambiguity of their own creativity," he says, lest it distort and obscure the wider reality.

Such awareness, he adds, probably is now as new and upsetting to "the scientist as it once was new to the priest."

But "the lesson of history, and now of the history of a scientific culture — and also the message of the Gospel — is that it is the very creativity of man that can spell his doom, that his knowledge can be turned into blindness, and his power into self-destruction," Gilkey says.

A Baptist professor of theology, Gilkey, 58, is author of numerous trenchant books, including "Religion and the Scientific Future" (Harper & Row), and "Reaping the Whirlwind" (Seabury Press).

His views on scientific predominance and its need for qualifications were first presented at a science and religion conference at Gustavus Adolphus College, and are included in a new volume, "The Future of Science."

Just as theology once was considered the reigning criteria and source of "true" knowledge, with all other disciplines seeking to incorporate its reasoning, he says science and technology now hold that encompassing sway.

Area training clinic planned

A regional Church Training Clinic for Baptist churches of the southeast Missouri area will be conducted Tuesday at Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 W. Murray Lane.

The clinic is sponsored by the Missouri Baptist Convention, and will be led by stateworkers under the guidance of the Rev. Jim Thomas, director of the Church Training Department for the Convention.

Separate sessions are planned for all age-level workers in local church training programs,well as staff members and general officers.

The clinic will be divided into afternoon and evening sessions– 1:15 to 4:30 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Youth fellowship service slated

MALDEN--A fellowship service for Baptist youth of southeast Missouri will be conducted Sept. 16 at Macedonia Baptist Church, located at the corner of North Edwards and Davis streets, according to Otis L. Hawes Jr. of Poplar Bluff, director of SeMo Baptist Fellowship, the sponsoring organization.

The keynote speaker for the 7:30 p.m. event will be the Rev. David Ring of Liberty.

Other personalities on the program will be Rex Rattler of Poplar Bluff, Willis Green of Sikeston, Danny Kilgore of Malden, the Mayo Family of Doniphan, St. Paul Baptist Church youth choir of Wardell and Mary Ethridge of Bloomfield.

Fellowship of Christian Peace Officers small but growing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sgt. Jim Higgins, a 29-year veteran of the San Francisco Police Department, expresses despair at the "macho image" of insensitive, hard-drinking, boisterous policemen.

"A man can get a heart of stone doing police work and his love for others shrivels up and drifts away," said Higgins.

The burly sergeant is deeply involved in a small but growing group of law enforcement agents who have formed the Fellowship of Christian Peace Officers. Twenty-five officers belong to the San Francisco chapter with other units in Oakland, Los Angeles and other cities.

Sgt. Art Brandwood, president of the fellowship's 10-member Oakland chapter, said trying to spread the Gospel among policemen is a difficult challenge.

He said many officers look on Christianity as "a weakness, a crutch that's alright for women, children and old people — but not for the rugged, he-man type of guy."

However, Brandwood said "God is dealing with that attitude" through the example of others in police ranks who are respected for physical prowess and proven ability as cops "and who still love and serve Christ."

Higgins and his partner, Sgt. Jim Crowley, made an appeal for prayers last October on the Virginia-based Christian Television Network. They decried San Francisco as a "wicked city that needs all the prayers it can get."

Their religious message to anyone who will listen involves an evangelical attack on pornography, drug addiction, homosexuality and San Francisco's high rate of alcoholism, suicide and veneral disease.

Last summer, Crowley got embroiled in a public spat with his own police chief, Charles Gain, when Gain urged gay policemen to come out of the closet.

The husky Crowley said he considered homosexuals as "the deceived who are deceiving others and leading them down the path to Satan. Only Jesus can break that bondage."

Crowley and Higgins said they pray daily that Gain and Mayor George Moscone will "finally come to the Lord."

San Francisco is a particularly fertile city for religious reawakening Crowley said, "because any vocal minority can find a politician willing to change the law, rather than enforce it. The Bible says the law was not meant for the righteous man, but for the wicked. If we keep going the way we are, we'll soon be rapist."

Higgins said he is not surprised that some people may find it difficult to believe that a hardened, street-wise cop can radically change his life by reading the Bible. "People who have known us for years, like our wives, can see the change," he said, "My life is great now.

"The things that used to be so important, putting the career first, ahead of everything, going out and drinking with the boys, having a ball, all have vanished. It's all gone through the mercy of Jesus."

Jewish New Year and holy days to begin on Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — The sound is piercing, soul-stirring, powerful. It comes from the shofar, Hebrew for ram's horn, the world's oldest wind instrument. Three blasts from it mark the start of the Jewish high holy days.

The observance begins at sunset Monday with Rosh Hashana, Hebrew for the "beginning of the year," the first part of the "10 days of awe" culminating on Sept. 22 with the day of atonement, Yom Kippur.

It's a time of self-examination, repentence for past wrongs and rededication to a more righteous future, individually and for all humanity.

"O Lord our God ... gather all thy children around thy banner of truth that thy name may be hallowed ... and the entire human family may be blessed with truth and peace," goes a prayer for the services.

Although Rosh Hashana, calculated by the old Jewish lunar calendar, marks the legendary 5738th year since creation, the occasion is celebrated not as a chronoligical measuring point, but a "new year" of conscience.

It summons people "to spiritual regeneration," Rabbi Walter S. Wurzburger, president of the Rabbinical Council of America, representing the Orthodox wing of Judaism, said in a message for the observance.

Rabbi Ely E. Pilchik, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, an arm of Reform Judaism, said human life itself is the major concern of the observance this time because of modern downgrading of life's "sanctity and dignity."

Rabbi Stanley Rabinowitz, president of the Rabbinical Assembly, an arm of Conservative Judaism, said the high holy days "help the worshipper deal with feelings of guilt."

Besides taking stock of past faults and contrition for them, believers seek forgiveness not only of themselves but to forgive those who have wronged them and commitment to a better future.

Jewish tradition says that on Rosh Hashana, humanity's fate for the coming year is written down and that it is sealed 10 days later on Yom Kippur.

Navy officer resigns to enter priesthood

Bauer, a combat veteran who now handles nonflying administrative duties with the Blue Angels flight team here, has resigned his commission to join the clergy.

He'll enter the Josephenium School of Theology in Worthington, Ohio, next month. He hopes eventually to be ordained a Roman Catholic priest in the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Mo., his home area.

The 30-year-old officer says he finds no conflict between roles as warrior and priest.

"It really wasn't a problem," Bauer said. "I joined the Navy of my own free will — I knew what I was getting into. I incurred the obligation to carry out my orders to the utmost of my ability and I'm still operating under that same commissioning oath I took several years ago."

Bauer has been in the Navy for eight years. His father was a Navy radarman in World War II and since high school Bauer had wanted a naval career.

Then as a student at Southwest Missouri State University he began to feel "just an idea" about higher service.

It became a compelling drive. He said he made the decision to change about a year ago.

During the waning months of the Vietnam war, Bauer served in combat as a flight officer aboard F4 Phantom jets. The flight officer handles navigational and other duties while the pilot does the actual flying.

Bauer said his decision to enter a five-year seminary program doesn't require any judgment of: "Is the military right or wrong?"

"After ordination," he said, "I might possibly re-enter the Navy."

State training leader to be guest speaker

The Rev. Jim Thomas, director of the Church Training Department for the Missouri Baptist Convention in Jefferson City, will be the guest speaker for both the 10:45 a.m. amd 7 p.m. worship services Sunday at Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 w. murray Lane.

The pulpit guest will speak in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Wade Paris, who is out of town.

Prior to joining the Missouri Baptist Convention staff earlythis year, the Rev. Mr. Thomas was associate pastor and minister of education at First Baptist Church in Ferguson and a former minister of education and administrator of Tower Grove Baptist Church in St. Louis.

Ordained to the gospel ministry in 1957, the Monett native pastored churches in Missouri and Oklahoma and held pastoral and education positions at churches in Texas, Arizona and Louisiana before returning to Missouri.

He is a graduate of Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar, Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee, Okla., and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth Tex.

He and his wife,Shirley, have two teen-age children, Teresa Ann and Timothy Dale.

Potter recently returned from Israel, and will share some highlights of the trip.

The meeting is open to men and women of all faiths.

National meeting set for Christian Gypsies

TEXARKANA,-- Thousands of American Gypsies are expected to attend the first national Gypsy Christian Convention Sept. 18-25 at the International Chemical Center here. The event is sponsored by the Assemblies of God Division of Home Missions.

Participants will include Christians from Gypsy camps in France and Germany who will present their testimonies of conversion to Christianity. Speakers will include the Rev. T. E. Gannon, national director of the Division of Home Missions; the Rev. Clement LeCossec of France; and the Rev. Hoseph Mazzu, who has worked among European Gypsies. Gypsy musicians will play for the gospel sings.

The Rev. Patrick O. McLane, representative to the Gypsies for the U.S. Assemblies of God, iscoordinator of the convention.

A major Pentecostal revival has swept the Gypsy camps of Europe since 1952 and more than 50,000 Gypsies have been baptized in water, the Rev. Mr. McLane states. Several years ago the revival spread to the United States, and Gypsy congregations have been formed in California, Arkansas, and New Jersey. Several services are held in Romany, the international Gypsy language.

The Rev. Mr. McLane estimates there are about two million Gypsies in the United States. He said the convention is being held in Texarkana because of the large number of Gypsies living in the area nad because Pentecostal home missionaries have been working in this area.

Prior to this national convention, a three-day Gypsy convention is scheduled Sept. 11-13, at Ecclesia Assemblies of God Church inBrooklyn, N.Y.

The Assemblies of God, with headquarters in pringfield, Mo., is the largest among the Pentecostal bodies. The church has over one and one - fourth million members and adherents in this country and in excess of six million worldwide.

HIGH SPY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Portrait Gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution, has acquired what Marvin Sadik, director, says is the only known life portrait of Revolutionary War hero Enoch Crosby, master spy.

The portrait, which was done by the studio of Samuel Waldo and William Jewett, was commissioned by John R. Peters of New York and painted in 1830. It belonged to Peters' descendants before passing into the hands of the gallery.

Crosby, a hero in his own time, was considered one of the most skillful spies in the revolution. He worked at times directly with George Washington. Crosby was also the model for James Fenimore Cooper's novel, "The Spy."

By WOODI ISHMAEL

THE NEW TESTAMENT
No. 16 Jesus Commands His Disciples
Jesus called the 12 disciples together, and he endowed them with the power to cast out evil spirits and to heal every sort of sickness and disease. Then he commanded them to go forth and to minister in his name, and to follow steadfastly the instructions he laid down for them.
"Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. But beware of men: for they will deliver you up to the councils, and they will scourge you in their synagogues: And ye shall be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them and the Gentiles." (Matthew 10:16-18)
"And the brother shall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child: and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death. And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake; but he that endureth to the end shall be saved." (Matthew 10:21-22)

State tax cuts urged

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's healthy financial status would allow state government to maintain its current level of services and at the same time cut taxes, according to a report issued Wednesday by the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey.

In its analysis of the state's general fund, the group said both the state sales and income taxes should be reduced.

The sales tax should be cut by 1-8 cent to offset the recent increase in the tax by that amount for conservation purposes, the group said.

That move would eliminate the inconvenience of a tax "figured in an unwieldy fraction," the survey's report said.

In addition, the group urged a cut in the personal income tax to protect Missouri's taxpayers from "inflation-imposed higher taxation."

Tax tables and brackets should be adjusted so the tax would not diminish the increased salaries received to offset inflation, the group added.

The report said the present and future outlook for the state was favorable.

In the current year, estimated revenues were large enough to finance a 13 per cent increase in general revenue spending and still leave a $22 million uncommitted balance. Still, the state would be able to have a $55 million operating reserve and $18 million for supplemental or emergency appropriations, the group's figures showed.

The report took into account this summer's special legislative session was planning to spend about $20 million in general revenue money, along with federal revenue sharing, for the $140 million to pay for state building construction and renovation.

The group said the general trend of revenue receipts was "steeply upward and receipts have consistently exceeded estimates in recent years."

Other factors, along with rapidly rising revenue, are expected to continue to help improve the state's general revenue position, the group said.

"One is the federal take-over of adult welfare programs, which to date have reduced the state's annual cost from $50 million to $20 million," the report said. "Another is federal revenue sharing, which has been providing appropriations for building purposes, averaging about $54 million a year."

What's the law?

Failure to surrender constituted crime

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Norton was interrupted in the middle of a sentence – a jail sentence. While serving time in the slammer, he walked right smack into a jail break while strolling down a corridor. And rather than risk leaving Norton behind, fearing that he might possibly sound an alarm, the escaping prisoners forced Norton to leave with them by threatening his life.

Once outside the prison walls, however, Norton quickly adapted to his newfound and unanticipated freedom. Discarded by the scattering prisoners, he began to stroll merrily down a highway with a whistle on his lips and a twinkle in his eyes. Unfortunately, as soon as he entered a town, he was promptly picked up by the local gendarmes, and much to his chagrin, he was charged with breaking out of jail.

"I had no choice," protested Norton in his defense. "I was forced to leave against my will. If I hadn't gone out, I'd have been done in . Those escaping prisoners would have taken me apart cell by cell."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you find Norton guilty of breaking out of the slammer?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that even though Norton may have departed from jail under threat of violence, his failure to turn himself over the authorities at the first available opportunity constituted the crime of breaking jail.

"When we caught up with him," responded the arresting officers, "Norton was headed away from the prison as if he didn't have a care in the world. He was 'out' and he knew he should have been 'in'. He broke jail without breaking stride."

BOOK REVIEW

In 1937, during the Fourth of July weekend, William Humphrey's father was injured fatally in an auto accident while returning to his home in the small Texas town of Clarksville. Humphrey was 13 years old at the time.

"Farther Off From Heaven" is Humphrey's nostalgic look back at his childhood and the time that childhood ended with the death of his father. While the book does have its moments, as a whole it will be of more interest to the author and his immediate family than to a general readership.

The problem is that it's such an intensely personal document that the reader always has the feeling of an outsider being allowed to peek in but only being allowed to see what the

From The Living Bible

Then God said, "Let the water beneath the sky be gathered into oceans so that the dry land will emerge." And so it was. Then God named the dry land "earth," and the water "seas." And God was pleased. And he said, "Let the earth burst forth with every sort of grass and seed-bearing plant, and fruit trees with seeds inside the fruit, so that these seeds will produce the kinds of plants and fruits they came from." And so it was, and God was pleased. This all occurred on the third day.

Companies get involved in public service

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A private housing corporation with $3 million in loaned money is restoring rundown apartment buildings on the city's South Side.

Orchestra Hall, sparkling home of the renowned Minnesota Orchestra, was built three years ago with some $14.2 million in private funds.

When the Minnesota Vikings couldn't quite sell out some home football games, a financial angel stepped up three times to buy a few thousand tickets. Result: television fans at home weren't blacked out, and disadvantaged adults and children got a chance to see a pro grid game.

These are three ways that business has helped to meet what corporate leaders here call their "social responsibility." The program centers on the Minnesota Corporate Community Five Per Cent Investment Club. The Greater Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce launched what it considers the unique plan last year with 23 members and it has expanded to 34.

The member companies pledge to donate at least 5 per cent of their pretax earnings to various charitable, educational and community services. The Internal Revenue Service permits up to 5 per cent writeoff for such purposes. But some ventures are motivated by profit, too, the executives concede.

General Mills is sponsoring apartment rehabilitation. It loaned $3 million to Stevens Court, Inc., which expects to spruce up 1,000 apartments by 1984.

Sixty-three per cent of the Orchestra Hall funding came from private businesses. Through a special arrangement, the hall was sold to the city and leased to the orchestra.

Pillsbury Co. stepped in to assure local TV coverage of three Vikings' home games when the contests were not sellouts 72 hours prior to game time. The few thousand tickets, bought for about $10 apiece, were donated to charities.

The national average for corporate giving to community projects last year was about .86 of their pretax income, according to David Koch, president of Graco, Inc., and last year's chamber chief. Throughout Minnesota the average was 1.3 per cent.

Publicly held corporate contributions in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area totaled $16 million. But even the little guys get into the act. Anderson's China Shop donated 5 per cent, or about $1,000 last year. "My grandfather founded the company in 1879 and I came into the business 30 years ago. It's a natural thing to give at least 5 per cent. We're part of the community," said President Alan Anderson.

A few companies were contributing 5 per cent of their pretax earnings prior to the club's formation. Dayton Hudson Corp., a national retailing and development firm, has been doing so 31 years. It donated over $5 million in 1976, company officials said.

Many larger area firms are not listed on the 5 per cent roster although their contributions rate above the national average and some make civic contributions in other ways.

For example, Honeywell, Inc., is expanding its headquarters just two miles from downtown, rather than building in the suburbs, and Pillsbury chose to erect a new headquarters in the heart of downtown.

Honeywell donated $1.7 million last year, about 53 per cent to health and welfare and 33 per cent to education. It has bought more than $28 million in goods and services from minority-managed firms in the past five years.

Control Data, a computer firm located in suburban Bloomington, emphasizes social action by locating some plants in depressed areas here and in other states. It operates a bindery in St. Paul that provides employment for over 100 persons, many of them minority women and college students who need odd-hours jobs.

The 3M Co. donated some $4 million to $5 million last year, and has made land grants to two government agencies in Minnesota and New Jersey worth an estimated $2 million. The General Mills Foundation and Contributions Committee pumped out $4.1 million the past fiscal year.

Among the larger 5 per cent club members, in addition to Dayton Hudson, are Northwestern National Bank, First National Bank and the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co.

Contributions of Northern States Power Co. have amounted to about 5 per cent annually the past four years, says Rollie Comstock, vice president of communications. It amounted to $3.5 million in 1976, including the value of donated land along the Upper St. Croix River for parks.

Teasdale under fire

Revenue shakeup said prompted by pressure

By JESSE W. BUNN
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — When James T. LePage, Missouri revenue director, was forced to resign by Gov. Joseph Teasdale for refusing to fire four tax investigators, LePage said he realized Teasdale's request was "well within his prerogative" as governor.

But since Teasdale's surprising announcement that he was forcing LePage to quit, state legislators and officials, both Republican and Democrat, have questioned the propriety of the governor interfering in the affairs of an investigative bureau.

Their concern stems from information linking Teasdale's action to complaints from the governor's political allies that the bureau was slectively investigating cases. In particular, one complaintant, Harold Fridkin, a Kansas City lawyer and political adviser to Teasdale, represents clients investigated by the bureau. One of his clients contributed $1,000 to Teasdale's campaign.

In a press conference called to announce his resignation, LePage said he was aware of "pressure from other pressure points" to have the men dismissed.

Teasdale said his reason for calling for the agents' dismissal was that the men were appointed to the bureau by former Republican Gov. Christopher Bond. Teasdale said he wanted investigators loyal to him. "I'm running the government and that was the bone of contention," Teasdale said.

The effect of Teasdale's actions will be to stifle investigations presently underway since the agents may no longer be employed by the state when it comes time for the cases to go to court. LePage likened the situation to a person ticketed for speeding and when the defendant appears in court, there is no police officer to testify. Sandord Sarasohn, department of revenue counsel, said "the prosecution may have some problem with witnesses" if the men are forced to leave with cases to be tried.

One of the first to criticize Teasdale's actions was David T. Broeker, an assistant to the Missouri Republican chairman and a former Bond aide, who called for a state auditor's investigation into alleged selective prosecution of tax cases. In his press conference Teasdale, hinted at selective prosecution when he said the agents were concentrating efforts on Democrats and ethnic groups. He said of 10 convictions by the bureau in Kansas City, "eight were of Italian extraction, one was a Jew and one was a fellow named Jackson." Teasdale said, "I don't think it looks very good."

State Auditor Thomas M. Keyes, a Democrat, said his office, "would make inquiries to determine if any formal study of the state department of revenue's special tax-fraud investigative unit is called for."

Broeker also wrote to Senate President Pro Tem Norman L. Merrill, D-Lewis, who is chairman of the gubernatorial appointments committee, and asked for a review by the Senate. Broeker claimed Teasdale's actions are in direct conflict with a U.S. Supreme Court decision forbidding dismissals on the basis of partisan politics.

Republican Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps said he believed the four men could successfully appeal their dismissals in court because of the Supreme Court decision.

Another elected Democrat, State Treasurer James Spainhower, opposed the dismissal of LePage. Spainhower has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor in 1980. In a televised interview, Spainhower called the firing of LePage "ill-advised" and "unfortunate."

The treasurer said he hoped Teasdale would reconsider his actions against LePage and would not persist in having the investigators fired. "I don't believe the governor of this state has any business becoming involved in the investigative arm of the government," Spainhower said.

There apparently has been at least some Democratic party opposition to Teadale's action according to Spainhower. "We're all Democrats and we like Gov. Teasdale," Spainhower said. "But we think he made a mistake here, and we think from the standpoint of good government and good politics we must say what we feel. And we think the evidence is quite clear here that this is headed in a direction that we as a party ought not to be headed."

Although LePage resigned Sept. 2, he has not determined when the resignation is effective. He planned to meet with Teasdale Sept. 12 to discuss the situation. Under the present department structure, Richard Judd, deputy director, would assume the position on LePage's departure.

Judd said he has not been contacted by the governor's office and has reached no decision on the dismissal of the agents.

Jury rules Tatum hanging a suicide

CHARLESTON -- A coroner's jury impaneled Thursday afternoon for an inquest into the hanging death of Jimmy (James Morgan) Tatum, 19, of Anniston rules that Tatum committed suicide by hanging himself Sept. 4 in Mississippi County jail.

The jury, called by Coroner Elgin McMikle, also ruled that Tatum acted alone in committing suicide with no one else involved in the death.

Tatum, who was being held in Mississippi County Jail on a charge of first degree murder, filed in connection with the July 14 stabbing death of Mrs. Mary Helen Finley, 44, of rural Charleston, was found hanging in his cell shortly after 5 p.m. Sept. 4 by a jail trusty Tyrone Price, one of the witnesses at the inquest.

Other witnesses questioned by Prosecuting Attorney Edward C. Graham during the informational and investigative proceeding were McMikle, Deputy Sheriff Dennis Turley and T.E. Simmons, jailer.

The jury was instructed to determine if the death was a felony, an accident or suicide.

McMikle testified he was summoned to the jail about 5:30 p.m. Sept. 4 by the Sheriff's department, where he found Tatum hanging from a water pipe near the ceiling of his cell. A sheet from his bunk had been knotted around his neck and looped over the waterpipe.

The coroner attributed death to strangulation and testified that there were no other marks, other than bruises about the neck, on the body or any broken bones. There were no indications within the cell of a struggle and Tatum had been dead less than an hour when he arrived. McMikle said, as the body temperature was still warm.

Adding that he had learned nothing during his investigation to indicate anyone else was involved in the death, McMikle said in his opinion it was a suicide.

McMikle also said he found a note lying on top of a television in the cell. The note, which read, "I did not do it" and I love LaVonda A", and two letters, which McMikle said were given to him by the sheriff's department, were introduced in evidence by Graham.

The letters, one addressed to Tatum's attorney, James Robison of Sikeston, and the other to his girlfriend, LaVonda Abernathy of East Prairie, were read by the jury members. Contents of the letters were not disclosed to the public.

Turley's testimony showed the officer had last seen Tatum alive on Sept. 3. He said he was called to the jail about 5:45 p.m. Sept. 4. and took photographs of the cell and body. The photographs were viewed by the jury.

The officer said he saw no signs of a struggle within the cell, knew of no threats made against Tatum's life and said there was no way that anyone could have gotten into the cell, which is on the lower level of the jail, a cell used primarly for women.

Tatum was returned Aug. 31 from maximum security Fulton State Hospital where he had been taken for mental examination and declared competent to stand trial. His brother, Frankie Tatum, 24, of Anniston is charged with capital murder in the slaying death of Mrs. Finley and has also been declared competent to stand trial. He has not been returned to Mississippi County but is expected to be returned sometime next week. A preliminary hearing for him is scheduled for Sept. 15.

According to testimony from Price, he first met Tatum the day he was returned from the Fulton hospital. He had talked with him everyday and on the day of his death, Price said he had talked with him about an hour when his (Tatum's) girlfriend came up outside the jail and the two were talking through a window.

"I told him I was going upstairs to take a shower. I was gone about 30-minutes and when I came back I say him hanging. I maybe missed him by a few seconds for his body was still swinging when I came back," Price testified.

Tatum reportedly had trouble with his eyes and at times had double vision. Price related that he had written the two letters for Tatum, adding that Tatum had also written a note to be enclosed in the letter to his girlfriend.

After discovering the body, Price said he called out to Tatum hoping he could rouse him. Getting no response he said he then ran to the jailer's quarters in the jail and summoned Simmons, who called Sheriff Norris Grissom.

Also during his testimony, Price said Tatum had told him the only one he was afraid of was his brother, Frankie. "He told me he had tried to kill himself before but that 'God wouldn't let him kill himself". He concluded by saying, "I figure he got depressed after his girlfriend left."

According to testimony from Simmons, he had seen Tatum alive in his cell about 35-40 minutes before he was found hanging, when the youth had asked him for change to get a soft drink.

The jailer said he went to the cell area after Price had hammered on his door, calling out that "Jimmy had hanged himself". The cell was locked and the body was slightly moving when he got to the lower floor of the jail where Tatum was being held, Simmons said.

Take one home economist, one program director, and one model kitchen furnished by Otasco, Lewis Furniture, Homestead, PJ Sully, McConnell's Chamber's Electric, Sikeston Lumber Co., and Coffey's Appliance. Add 850 women, men and youngsters from Sikeston and surrounding counties. Cook for two hours.

That's the recipe for Progressive Farmer's Southern Kitchens Cooking School Thursday night a the Sikeston High SchoolField House co-sponsored by the Daily Standard.

And the recipes were the name of the game.

A large crowd watched and listened for about two hours to a cooking demonstration by Phyllis Young, Progressive Farmers home economist. She and Beth Hawes, program director, make up one of four teams conducting cooking schools all across the South and Southwest. . . . bringing with them utensil- filled suitcases and equipment- filled trunks.

Earlier in the day, Miss Young opened her special suitcases and began measuring, slicing and stirring ingredients donated by Piggly Wiggly in preparation for recipes that would be prepared before the audience. She was assisted by Janet Lee of Benton and Kay Neill of Sikeston.

Meanwhile, Beth Hawes was preparing the model kitchen, supervising the hook up of appliances, moving in tables, setting lights, testing the sound system and making the final arrangements for the demonstration.

The "school time" was here and Miss Young prepared dishes from salads to breads, entrees and desserts, while the audience followed along in their recipe books. Samples were passed out for tasting and free recipe books were provided to everyone, compliments of Southern Kitchens' national sponsors.

Prizes of flowers from Carroll's Florist, 15 per cent discount on wallpaper from House of Carpet, crock pot from Big K, General Electric portable mixer from TG..Y, woman's handbag from the Shoe Box, Super-Shooter from Wal-Mart, frying machine from Osco, two pieces of no-stick cookware and kitchen tool set from J.C. Penney, a set of Corning Ware from Homestead, Gourmet kitchen tools from Otasco, Vita-Saver from Moore's Ace Hardware and a Silverstone Skillett from Britts were awarded to members of the audience.

When all the recipes were completed and dishes washed, the lights went off, tables came down, the model kitchen was disconnected and the suitcases were repacked as the team headed to Alabama and Texas.

And to another cooking school somewhere in the South.

Special thanks go to the Girl Scouts and their leaders, Mrs. Patty Stamp and Mrs. Sue Thompson.

Phyllis Young adds the final touches to a cooking school recipe.

Youth held for theft

A 16-year-old Poplar Bluff youth was taken into custody Thursday afternoon after he allegedly took $194 from a cash box at Tupperware Home Parties, 121 Smith St., according to the Public Safety Department.

Officers said the youth was riding in a Dr. Pepper delivery truck that had stopped at the building. He was in the office and asked an employe for a drink of water.

The employe went to the back of the building to get some water and the boy drank the water and left. At that point the employe discovered the money missing from the cashbox that had been sitting on a desk.

Officers found the delivery truck at the Quick Chek Market, 709 Smith St. They also found $154 hidden in the youth's sock and $40 hidden in the cab of the truck.

The youth was turned over to juvenile authorities.

EP okays obscenity law

EAST PRAIRIE— An ordinance defining obscenity and designed to abolish the sale of obscene literature within the city was adopted Thursday night by the City Council.

The council had discussed adoption of a new ordinance at meetings in recent months and were petitioned at the August meeting by a four-member committee to take immediate steps to ban the sale of obscene literature.

Material is obscene if, considered as a whole, its predominant appeal is to prurient interest, that is, a shameful or morbid interest, in nudity, sex or excretion and if in addition it goes beyond customary limits of candor in describing or representing such matters, according to a partial definition of obscene in the new ordinance.

The ordinance also states that no person shall knowlingly sell, deliver or provide any obscene writing, picture, record or other representation or embodiment of the obscene .... publish, exhibit or otherwise make available any obscene material.... or possess any obscene material for the purpose of sale or other commercial dissemination.

Violation of any part of the new ordinance may result in a punishment by fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment not to exceed three-months or by both fine and

11 injured in area accidents

Two persons were seriously injured and 11 others sustained minor injuries in a accidents Thursday and this morning on area roads, the highway patrol reported today.

In a one-car accident at 11:30 p.m. Thursday on Highway 25, one mile south of Jackson in Cape Girardeau County, Marty Lynn Illers, 24, of Jackson suffered serious injuries and was taken to the St. Francis Medical Center in Cape Girardeau.

The patrol said the accident occured when Illers was driving south at a high rate of speed, ran off the road and struck a large rock at a private residence and overturned several times.

Linda Jean Keirsey, 18, of Dexter, driver of an eastbound car, sustained serious injuries at 3:15 p.m. Thursday when her car car struck a gasoline truck at the junctions of Highway 60 and FF, a half mile north of Essex.

The patrol said the accident occured when a gas truck driven south by Marion Myers, 39, of Dexter was stopped to let another vehicle pass and apparently did not see the Keirsey car pulled out and was struck in the right front by the Keirsey car.

Myers suffered minor injuries and both of the injured were taken to the Dexter Memorial Hospital.

Human Rights Commissioners are arriving

Missouri's Human Rights Commissioners from the state's 10 Congressional Districts began arriving in Sikeston today to prepare for the Community Forum Saturday.

Chairman Al Brooks, assistant city manager for Kansas City, will conduct a meeting at 7:30 tonight to transact monthly business.

The Saturday forum, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the community room of the Security Federal Savings and Loan Association, 820 North Main St., will break for an hour between 12 and 1 p.m., then continue its hearings as long as there are people to be heard.

Mrs. Keith Collins, commissioner from this 10th district, said the purpose of the forum is two-fold: To better inform the citizens of the Bootheel what are Missouri's human rights laws as they pertain to employment, housing and public accommodation; and secondly, to allow the commission an opportunity to hear the problems and concerns in these areas of Southeast Missourians.

Representatives from industry, city government, Southeast Missouri State University and other agencies have indicated a desire. The public is invited to come and listen, learn and speak so that the Missouri Commission on Hugman Rights can use its jurisdictional authority to better serve the people in Southeast Missouri.

Control board, CBs taken

A lighting control board worth $1,100 and four citizens band radios were reported stolen, according to the Public Safety Department.

A dimmer board worth $1,100 was taken from the attic of the Sikeston Activity Center sometime between 10:30 p.m. Wednesday and 2:20 p.m. Thursday.

David Kent Pierce, 909 Stanford Drive, reported a citizens band radio worth $60 taken from a pickup truck belonging to his brother, James Pierce III, of Lexington, Ky., while the truck was parked on Stanford Drive.

Ronald Eaker, 1013 Davis Blvd., reported the theft of a citizens band worth $75 from his car between 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

Joseph Fabick, 201 College Ave., reported the theft of a citizens band from his company car, parked at his home between 10 p.m. Wednesday and 7 a.m. Thursday.

No value was given for the radio.

Jerry Yates, 121 Holmes St., reported the theft of a citizens band radio Thursday from his car while it was parked in his garage. The value of the radio was valued at $129.

Zoning issue not dead

J.R. James, 733 Goodhope St., A real estate broker, who debated with the City Council Tuesday night about his request to rezone Goodhope St. said he wanted the street rezoned from single family to multiple family.

The story in Wednesday's edition of the Daily Standard incorrectly listed the requested rezoning as commercial.

The issue may come up again at the Sept. 20 Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

Two petitions have been presented to the city concerning the zoning of the Taylor and Hunter Street area immediately south of Goodhope St.

THE QUIETER AMERICANS

The words of a once-popular song, of a vintage older than we care to remember, admonished: "Milkman, keep them bottles quiet!"

The early-morning milkman, of course, is a vanished part of Americana, along with his noisy glass bottles (not to mention the thick cream that used to float on top). But all manner of old and new aural disturbances to urban tranquility continue to plague us.

Fortunately, we no longer need complain in song; there's somebody who can keep the "milkman" quiet. Who else but the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency?

In the latest of a series of measures designed to reduce the ear pollution that assails Americans, the EPA has just proposed regulations governing trash collection trucks.

Specifically, the rules apply to the large compactors mounted on garbage trucks and call for a noise reduction in their operation of 50 per cent by 1982. Presumably, trash handlers would still be free to bang garbage cans against the sides of the trucks and against the street, curb, driveway or what have you.

The EPA has laready issued or proposed noise control regulations for portable air compressors, bulldozers and small and medium trucks. Coming up soon, it says, are rules for buses, motorcycles, pavement breakers, rock drills and lawnmosers.

Some day it will be so quiet in America you'd be able to hear a milk bottle drop — if anybody was delivering one.

The Friendship Force is an excellent idea. President Carter launched it at a conference of state governors and it was chartered on March 14 this year, but the first implementation takes place, appropriately, at the time of writing, which is Independence Day weekend.

The Force operates as a series of multination people-to-people exchange visits, wherein ordinary citizens will become ambassadors of goodwill by spending at least four and up to eight days in the home of a host or hosts in the country visited, participating in their family life, even sharing their workload, and generally learning the habits and the thought forms of the country, as well as communicating information about life in tthe United States. At least four days are to be spent in the home of a host, after which, according to arrangement, the visitor can either go into the home of another host or make personal arrangements to tour the country.

Since this is an exchange arrangement, the plane which takes the USA visitors across the seas will on its return journey bring visitors to the United States, where the same arrangement will obtain. Since the exchange visits occur at the same time, the respective "ambassadors" will have arranged with their friends for the accommodation of their exchange partners.

This is not a cheap alternative to tourism. The ambassadors have a mission to fulfill. Consequently, the destination of the exchange will not be made known at the initial stages of an ambassador's programming. Each person who participates as a traveler pays his or her own way, though in special circumstances some assistance can be secured. The cost will be $250 a person for a 10-day involvement, two days being taken for traveling time.

Educational programs will be arranged for the travelers about five to six months before the actual exchange, with one or more mandatory workshops for hosts and ambassadors. The programs will include study groups, classes, lectures, educational TV programs, and seminars designed to familiarize participants with the history, religion, government, culture, climate, language and customs of the nation in which the exchange city is located.

Mrs. Rosalynn Carter will serve as honorary national chairperson of the Friendship project, which has already been accepted by a wide variety of countries, butrthe undertaking is not government controlled or financed; it is a nonprofit organization, of which the Rev. Wayne Smith of Decatur, Ga., a former missionary in Brazil, is the president and Wade Seal is the executive director. Those interested should communicate with them at 575 Omni International, Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

By 1980 when the Friendship Force is fully under way, approximately 500,000 persons will be participating in the program. A goal of six 'Friendship' flights is being planned between July 4 and December 31, 1977; the goal for 1978 is 30 states and countries, with all states participating by 1980.

On the first flight, July 4, to Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England, a city recently visited by President Carter, Mrs. Major Houston Ellis of the Southern Territory is a traveler and Mr. and Mrs. Alf Dixon of Newcastle will be staying in the home of Major and Mrs. Edward Laity of Atlanta.

We repeat: the Friendship Force is an excellent idea. It recognizes that to understand a country and its people, it is not enough to stay in a hotel (which is a very unreal place, largely unvisited by the inhabitants) and to try to "do" Europe in a couple of weeks. Visitors to Newcastle-upon-Tyne will not understand the habits or outlooks of the whole of England, for the counties of England each have subtle differences, just as Manhattan dwellers differ from those of Minneapolis or Miami.

But coming close to people means that some generic, cultural and historic matters are understood a little better. What has to be avoided is the categorical attitude that our way is best. Every country, every person in that country, has something to tach us, and with understanding comes appreciation of a deeper kind than the effusive "jut great." A sympathy which can develop into empathy—the world sorely needs this today.

RIGHTS VIOLATIONS IN INDONESIA

Editor's Note: Following a report by Amensty International that said that in Indonesia there were 55,000 to as many as 100,000 persons who since 1965 had been held in prison without charge or trial and a campaign by Amnesty International, USA, the Indonesian government announced a program for the release of its political prisoners.

Adm. Sudomo said that 30,934 prisoners remained in custody (after the Dec. 1, 1976 release of 2500 prisoners). He said that 10,000 of the remaining category B prisoners (those against whom there is insufficient evidence for a trial) would be released in 1977, 10,000 in 1978 and the remainder in 1979. The trials of all Category A prisoners (those suspected of personal involvement in the "attempted coup" of 1965) would be completed by the end of 1978.

The government also made it clear that "transmigration" schemes, involving mass transportation of "released" prisoners to permanent resettlement camps such a Buru Island would continue.

Amnesty International's International Secretariat in London has consistently challenged the statistics on political prisoners given by Indonesian government officials. In the past, these figures have seriously underestimated the magnitude of imprisonment and the most recent official announcement of 30,934 political prisoners still in prison in Indonesia is no exception. This figure takes into account only A and B Category prisoners held in established detention centers in large cities. There are a great number of other political prisoners.

Amnesty International has made repeated requests of the Indonesian government for an official list of all prisons with the exact number of detainees held in each. The government has described these requests as "unfair," and to date no list has been provided. Even on the basis of the government's admitted figures, there unquestionably exists a condition of a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights in Indonesia.

The United States section of Amensty International views the program of "releases" announced by Adm . Sudomo on Dec. 1, 1976, as a distinct progression in the policy of the Indonesian government towards its political prisoners. Nevertheless, the three-year delay for completion of the "release" plan is totally unacceptable by normal international standards. This is all the more the case in Indonesia where many thousands have already suffered detention without charge or trial for up to 12 years. They should not be forced to endure for another day the harsh conditions of prison or separatrion from their families.

Amnesty International, USA is also wholly opposed to the enforced resettlement plan as announced in the prison release program. People in detention who have no choice about transmigration cannot, as the government has implied, be equated with free people who can decide for themselves whether or not to be transmigrated. Forced exile to a distant and harsh location does not constitute a "release" of political prisoners. The transmigration program should be canceled, and prisoners who have already been transported to Buru island should be set free and permitted to return to their homes. --

Said one mother of a teenager to another: "Getting Tommy up for school in the morning is no problem."

"Well, I sure have trouble with my Ronnie," said the other woman. "How do you manage it?"

"I toss the cat into his bed." When the other woman looked surprised, Tommy's mother explained. "He sleeps with the dog."

POVERTY LEVELS

A new schedule has been issued by the federal government determination of who is, and who is not poor.

If your cash income falls below a certain figure for your size family, you are classed as poor, and eligible for certain aid. If above that figure, you are not.

There is nothing wrong with the figures, or with their issuance. The only fact with which most people take issue is that the determinationn is based on income only, and does not include assets.

For instance, a farmer or town dweller in Monroe County might own property worth thousands, but if he or she failed or refused to make that property produce any income, that person could still be included in the poverty group.

For instance, a farmer or town dweller in Monroe County might own property worth thousands, but if he or she failed or refused to make that property produce any income, that person could still included in the poverty group.

Most people believe that assets as well as cash income should be taken into account in any determination of who is poor and who is not.

P.S. TO THE NEWS

LOANS TO THE SOVIET BLOC
BY PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Copley News Service

If the United States cannot afford the new B-1 bomber to replace our 15-year-old B-52s, nor afford any more Minuteman missiles or Poseidon submarines, how can the Soviet Union afford to build more new bombers, missiles and submarines than the United States?

The answer is that the United States and other Western nations have loaned the USSR and six Soviet satellites more than $49 billion since 1970. Ths money that these Communist countries would have had to spend for food and factories goes instead for huge armies, navies and weapons.

The Soviet Union and its satellites have annual trade deficits, and they get larger every year. In 1973, the Soviet block trade deficit was estimated at $3.5 billion. By 1976, it had risen to almost $10 billion. This trade deficit has been financed by loans from the West: supplier credits, government credits, and issues on the Western money and capital markets.

Bankers and trade officials are worried not only about the size of these deficits but about the way they have been accelerating. New loans have recently been running at the rate of $1 billion per month. Prof. Richard Portes of London University calculates that if the present rate of borrowing continues through 1980, the cumulative Soviet debt will stand at $100 billion.

Financial experts usually caution that it is risky to lend to a country whose existing debt requires 18 to 20 per cent of its hard currency earnings to service. Debt servicing already requires 26 per cent of the Soviet Union's hard currency export earnings and 30 per cent of Poland's.

There are some indications that Western banks are becoming apprehensive about making further large-scale loans. They have discovered, however, that the Communists are uncooperative in providing the detailed credit information that banks customarily demand from American borrowers.

The Soviets are now trying to get Western creditors to take "barter" agreements, or agreements to take payment in the form of future production, or even merchandise that the Communist nations can't sell to anyone else.

East Germany and Poland are trying to pay 40 per cent of their import bills with this barter-type approach.

One trouble with this is that Communist-produced goods often have to be dumped at cut-rate prices. This causes both losses and vigorous protests from businesses and labor unions in West European countries where the merchandise is dumped.

The federal government, as a result of our State Department's policy of detente, has encouraged loans to Communist countres. There is a big difference, however, between ordinary commercial loans and loans to Communist countries. Loans to private corporations and to individuals can be se secured by mortgages and foreclosed when default occurs.

The huge $49 billion in loans made to seven Communist countries are extremely hazardous because they are not secured by anything. There is no way to foreclose a loan to a Communist government.

The Communist record for repaying loans is not inspiring. Russia paid back only about 5 per cent of the $11 billion we loaned to it during World War II.

The big mystery is, why do Western banks finance communism? Why have they loaned $18 billion to the Soviet Union, $10.8 billion to Poland, $6 billion to East Germany, $3.3 billion to Hungary, $2.8 billion each to Bulgaria and Romania and $2.1 billion to Czechoslovakia?

Congress should investigate why our government encouraged our bankers and businessmen to grant loans whichh not only greatly strengthen the Soviet Union, but enable the Kremlin to shift its resources into its nuclear weapons-building program.

Hunt, Liddy Only Me To Hallucinate
By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON -- The muckracker wants to be liked. He pictures himself not as a resented troublemaker but as an affable, benevolent figure, and instrument of civic betterment. He assumes that even his victims recognize that he is just doing his job and that his job has something to do with the larger welfare.

Moreover, the most abrasive reporter is apt to be, in his personal life, a thin-skinned fellow, terribly sensitive, easily desolated by the slightest criticism of himself of his work. And so it has been that under several administrations, reporters for this column have cavorted nonchalantly through private files and public reputations, confident that our altruism was generally recognized.

It came as a bit of a shock, therefore, to hear that the incomprehensible Watergate pair, E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, had plotted my liquidation. Hunt hastened to explain that they did not intend to do me in but merely to cause my irredeemable public disgrace.

We have now obtained evidence that Hunt's version, apparently, is quite correct. He had in mind nothing so base as putting out my lights forever; all he sought to do was make me an involuntary subject of the C-IA's MK ULTRA-DELTA research. This was the secret behavioraltering program that sent the unfortunate Dr. Frank Olson diving to his death through a New York City hotel window.

Hunt got his motivation, whether by osmosis or otherwise, from Richard Nixon who used the formidable resources of the federal government to discredit us. Ex-White House aide Charles Colson has testified that he was asked "many times" by President Nixon to take action "to discredit Jack Anderson."

To this end, the CIA assigned 18 radio cars to keep us under surveillance. The Pentagon, according to its former security chief, W. Donald Stewart, conducted at least 11 separate investifations of us, sparing no expense. The FBI secretly grabbed our telephone records, and the Internal Revenue Service conducted a penetrating, year-long audit of my finances.

This should have been intimation enough that someone in the White House didn't like us, but we never dreamed our popularity had fallen so low that two White House heavies would seek exotic CIA poisons to use against us. The full details are worth relating, as a footnote to the history of the Nixon era.

Even in the balmy days before Watergate, we later learned, the irrepressible Liddy, revolver at the ready, had prepared to do a "wipeout number" on me. Chance intervened, and Liddy was persuaded that the hit order had been a misunderstanding.

I recall being a bit unnerved over Liddy's assumption that my elimination was a self-evident desideratum that would add to the sum of human happiness. But the plotting against me became less personal until Hunt blew in with a plan.

As Charles Colson remembered it, Hunt came to his office with "some hare-brained schemes, something to do with drugging Jack Anderson." As Hunt remembered it, Colson was the instigator. He called Hunt, told him I was "a great thorn in the side of the president" and asked Hunt to find a means to discredit me.

Hunt, unfailingly empathetic with the seemier necessities of statecraft, assumed that Colson was reflecting the desires of the chief executive" or that, as a prescient staff officer, "was attempting to find a solution to a problem that was troubling his chief."

As at other times of national emergency, this was the signal for Hunt to call in Liddy. Together they called on a former CIA physician, Dr. Edward Gunn, who, Hunt said, "had some knowledge of the unorthodox administration of behavior-changing or altering substances."

Dr. Gunn later testified about the Hunt-Liddy meeting: "I was asked if I could help them provide hallucinating medications to an individual."

In the end, the project was dropped, but press reports told of a plot to "assassinate syndicated columnist Jack Anderson." The plan involved "use of a poison to be obtained from a former CIA physician" which "would leave no trace during a medical examination or autopsy."

These were hard-to-dismiss words - "assassinate," "poison," "autopsy" – which hung in the mind, causing me to feel cooly toward Hunt and Liddy. We, meanwhile, continued to make our furtive rounds of file cabinets, but with a more uneasy step.

Now CIA disclosures of its mind-altering experiments tend to vindicate Hunt's claim that he meant me no worse than that I hallucinate while driving to the TV studio, there to make an alltime idiot of myself.

We occasionally wonder whether, en route, the subject might have driven off the bridge or like Dr. Frank Olson jumped out a window. We are sure that Hunt would answer: "unavoidable minimal risks are involved in the service of principalities."

Still, it puts a better face on the business. Our old insouciance has already returned, and we feel a lot kindlier toward those gallant buffoons who have so enlivened this decade.

What's Wrong with Big Business Making a Real Profit?

By William E. Simon
Former Secretary of the Treasury

But that's exactly what we've been doing in this country over the past 15 years or more, putting business on the rack, and the fellow who has suffered most has not been the pinstriped executive but the worker trying to meet a mortgage and keep hamburger on the table.

Take a look at the Dow Chemical experience in California. A few years ago, Dow decided to build a $500-million petrochemical complex about 40 miles from San Francisco. The project was to open up 1,000 new construction jobs to build the plants and another 1,000 jobs later to operate them.

But then Dow began navigating the maze of governmental regulations designed to protect us fron the alleged abuses of big business. Everywhere it turned, Dow found its path blocked by demands from government bureaucrats that new clearances be obtained.

Eventually, the company was forced to apply for no less than 65 different governmental clearances, mostly environmental, at a cost to the corporate treasury of some $2 million. And even then, two years later, only five applications had been processed; the other 60 were still clogged in governmental papermills. Frustrated and exhausted, Dow finally threw in the sponge this past January, announcing that it no longer planned to build in California.

Some may argue that it doesn't really matter because Dow represents big business, and it is only getting what it deserves. Some may even argue -- and they have -- that America is better off anyway when we have zero economic growth. But I would submit that the insane governmental burdens placed on Dow Chemical really penalized working people: 2,000 of them were in fact cheated out of new job opportunities.

As outrageous as the Dow experience was, we ought to wake up to the fact that in subtle but significant ways, government is stifling private enterprise all across the nation, and the victims time and time again are middle-income people -- people with incomes in the $10-20,000 range. How?

First, through tax policies that discourage new investment and greater productivity. The U.S. imposes heavier taxes on corporations than almost any other major industrialized nation; indeed, we are one of the only remaining industrial powers that still taxes corporate profits twice, once at the corporate level and again at the stockholder level. Indeed it's this and other counterproductive and irresponsible government policies that help to explain why U.S. capital investments and U.S. productivity gains have been the lowest of any major industrialized democracy including Great Britain in recent years and why other nations are winning away our customers -- as well as our jobs.

Second, through spending policies that pile up enormous deficits, drive up consumer prices, and ultimately reduce employment opportunities. Over the past decade, the U.S. has recklessly doubled the national debt, contributing to the worst inflation and recession in more than a generation.

Third, through regulatory policies that are tying business in knots and costing consumers as much as $130 billion a year. Just last year, the government added almost 60,000 pages to the Code of Federal Regulations, and the flow continues unabated in the Carter administration. Government regulations and controls have also become the chief obstacle to the urgently needed growth of our energy industries.

And fourth, through erratic, stop-and-go fiscal and monetary policies in Washington. No businessman can confidently plan for the future in such an unpredictable, hazardous environment.

It is sheer demagogery for political leaders to preach that business is the enemy of working people. In fact, the two are inextricably bound together.

When business suffers at the hands of government, as it has so dramatically in recent years, workers also suffer. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor for nearly 40 years, put the issue well: "The worst crime against the working people," he said, "is a company that fails to make a profit." Nor should we forget that, since his day, the growth of employe pension funds has given workers even greater interest in the profits of private companies.

Free enterprise may be a dirty word in the salons of the social elite today, but working people have a direct, immediate stake in the success of the free enterprise system. When that system is undermined by overpaid bureaucrats, when the freedom to produce is destroyed by the non-producers, and when the loss of economic freedom is accompanied by the loss of political freedom -- as it always is -- then the working man ought to be the first one up on the barricades, defending his right to earn a decent living.

Todays News In Brief

Better water records needed

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. (AP) — A state official told representatives of rural and small city water systems that they are going to have to take more water samples and keep better record because of the federal Safe Drinking Water Act.

Everett Baker of the Missouri Department of Natural Resources spoke at a seminar Thursday attended by about 40 persons from local water systems in northwest Missouri. The act took effect June 24. Similar workshops are to be held in other parts of the state. Congress enacted the law in 1974.

Everett said its main effect on Missouri water systems is the additional man-hours that will be needed for taking and recording water samples.

Carter leaning to warheads

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter appears to be leaning toward the production of neutron warheads, but officials say he is delaying a decision because NATO allies are not anxious to publicly embrace the new weapons.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell had said in August that the President was likely to decide what to do about the weapons — neutron artillery shells and Lance missile warheads — early this month. A Pentagon memo, believed to be in support of the weapons, went to the White House on Aug. 15.

But one administration official said Thursday that Carter will not decide before late September. Another said the decision could come as late as October. Meanwhile, they said, the United States will consult further with its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies. Both officials asked not to be identified.

"The President feels the neutron bomb would be a useful and worthwhile weapon," one of the sources said. The source added that the NATO allies appear eager to have neutron weapons but are not ready yet "to take the political heat at home."

Teasdale snubs Ford banquet

DETROIT (AP) — Missouri Gov. Joseph Teasdale declined to join other governors in attending a banquet Wednesday hosted by Henry Ford II at the Ford family's 70-acre estate.

While governors were enjoying a multicourse dinner, the Missouri governor was eating a cheeseburger at a fast-food stand with Col. Al Lubker, head of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

Asked why he did not attend, Teasdale replied: "Henry Ford and I have nothing in common."

The banquet was held for governors attending the National Governors Conference at Detroit.

Missouri faces Medicaid loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare plans to withhold $3 million in Medicaid payments to Missouri because of the state's failure to inspect nursing homes serving Medicaid patients.

Rep. Robert A. Young, DMo., said HEW officials informed him Thursday of the penalties.

Missouri is one of 14 states that will be penalized a total of $114 million in Medicaid payments starting Oct. 1, Young said.

The congressman said the penalty announcement is the second this year for Missouri for failure to comply with the inspection law.

The first announcement came in June, but Congress passed a law postponing enforcement of the penalties until October. State officials also took court action to temporarily block imposition of the penalty.

Young said HEW wrote to him, saying the state "has not made an acceptable showing" for the first six months of this year and will subsequently lose $3 million in payments Oct. 1.

But Young said he plans to work with lawmakers from other states to win passage of legislation to postpone enforcement of the penalties for another year.

An extra year, he said, would give the Missouri Division of Family Services enough time to hire additional personnel to comply with the inspection law.

Bid to cut aid may be renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sponsor of an amendment to cut U.S. aid to South Korea says he may try again to get the measure passed in the House unless rice dealer Tongsun Park is returned to the United States. The amendment sponsored by Rep. Bruce Caputo, R+N.Y., was defeated 205-181 on Thursday.

Banking practices to be eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a result of the controversy over Budget Director Bert Lance's private financial dealings, federal examiners want to see if other bankers are involved in questionable banking practices. John G. Heimann, comptroller of the currency, told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee on Thursday that he had ordered the national investigation into banking procedures as a result of the allegations involving Lance.

Canal pact foes map strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The campaign by conservatives against the new Panama Canal treaties is beginning to crystalize as foes of the pact push to get public opinion against Senate ratification. Sources said the anti-treaty drive will be three-pronged, emphasizing the human rights record of Panama's strongman, Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos, the security of the canal and the financial arrangements between the United States and Panama.

Radio avoids mention of Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Radio Uganda made no mention today of President Idi Amin's condition despite a report Thursday from one of his chief aides that the Ugandan dictator was in a coma after undergoing surgery. The main item on the government's first news broadcast of the morning reminded the public that "15 Ugandans will be executed in public today by firing squad at the clock tower in Kampala," the Ugandan capital.

Moslems report Israel

HASBAYA, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese Moslems in this former Palestinian stronghold near the Israeli border say Israel is threatening them with destruction unless they cooperate with it. Officials and other residents of predominantly Moslem towns and villages in the shadow of Mt. Hermon report that Israeli officials across the border have issued several warnings recently.

CIRCUIT COURT

CHARLESTON--A Mississippi County Circuit Court jury Tuesday ruled in favor of the defendant, Charles Whittenburg, in a personal injuries nad damage suit filed by Charles C. Hatley in a change of venue case from New Madred County.

The suit stemmed from an accident Feb. 8, 1974 on Route 162 in New Madrid County. Whittenberg was the driver of a pickup truck thatbacked from a private driveway onto Route 162. Hatleys car struck the truck. The suit had sought $20,000 indamages.

James E. Martin of East Prairie, charged with two counts of statutory rape, and Jim Reynolds of East Prairie, charged with one count of statutory rape, pleaded guilty to amended charges of contributing to the deliquency of a minor by causing said child, a 14-year old East Prairie girl, to engage in sexual activities. Presentencing investigations were ordered in both cases and Martin and Reynolds are to report back to court Sept. 30.

The trial of G.B. Johnson of East Prairie, charged with two counts of statutory rape, was reset for Oct. 12.

Dear Ann Landers

Salaries poor for troopers?

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column someone complained about the state troopers in Connecticut and Massachusetts not being on the job. The person who wrote said he was traveling from Boston to Hartford, Conn., at 55 miles an hour and umpteen cars passed him. I can't answer for Connecticut, but I can tell you where the Massachusetts state troopers are. Since they have not received a raise in salary since 1969, they are probably out working an extra detail to pay for a home or their kid's education.

So, blow that out your barracks bag, Annabelle. -- Also Disgruntled

Dear Grunt: Sorry, Buster. I checked with Boston's able mayor, Kevin White, and double-checked with that great governor of Connecticut, Ella Grasso. Their responses knocked your "facts" cranksided.

Mayor White reported that in December of 1973, the Massachusetts state troopers' base pay was increased to $10,327 with a maximum of $12,745 after six years of service. At this moment arbitration is going on relevant to a future contract which will include another increase. Hopefully by the time this letter appears in print, they will have received it.

Ella Grasso reported that in 1969, the Connecticut state troopers earned $7,760 and they now earn $13,166. This means they have had seven raises in an eight-year period. Next time, before you tell anyone to blow it out their barracks bag, make sure you know what you're talking about.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this problem, and suggest a solution.

I am planning a celebration and want to invite the whole family -- both sides. My niece has been disowned by her father and he doesn't want her to even know where he lives. His sister shares his resentment. I love this girl who has done nothing to me. I also love her dad. I want her at this affair. I want her dad, too. If I do not invite her, I will feel like a hypocrite.

Thank you for any help you can give me. I read your column every day. -- Torn And Tormented

Dear T. and T.: Landers' Law Pertaining to Relatives at War is as follows: Invite whoever you want. Anyone who says, "I won't come if you ask So- and -So," should be told, "Sorry . . . we'll miss you."

Dear Ann: I love flowers and plants and have cultivated a breathtakingly beautiful fern. It is very large and frilly. Why do some people feel they must run their hands through a plant? It injures and breaks the fronds. A fern (or any other specimen of flora for that matter) does not like to be handled.

May I add my own 11th Commandment? "Thou shalt not fondle thy neighbor's fern, nor her cat nor her dog, nor her husband, nor anything else that belongs to her." -- Irked In Illinois

Dear Irked: Here's your letter. Clip it and tack it up near your fern. And lots of luck, honey.

MU-USC battle highlights Big 8

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Big Eight opens its 1977 season Saturday in a manner befitting its reputation as the No. 1 college football conference in America.

Missouri, picked fourth in the Big Eight by conference Skywriters, hosts Southern Cal, the favorite in the Pac-8; Kansas, tabbed last in the Big Eight, travels to Texas A&M, a favorite in the powerful Southwest Conference, and Oklahoma State, expected to do no better than sixth in the Big Eight wars, is at Tulsa, a co-favorite in the Missouri Valley.

Most other conference teams expect an easier time Saturday. No. 1 Oklahoma is home against Vanderbilt, Nebraska hosts Stanford, Iowa State entertains Wichita State and Kansas State is at Brigham Young.

The USC-Missouri clash, expected to draw a record home-opening crowd to Faurot Field, is being called the Revenge Bowl. The upset-happy Tigers stunned USC last September by dumping the Trojans, 46-25, in Los Angeles.

Regrouping, the Trojans zipped unbeaten through the rest of the schedule and whipped Michigan in the Rose Bowl, winding up No. 2 in the final Associated Press poll, convinced the Missouri loss cost them a national championship.

"I think every opener's special," says USC Coach John Robinson, "but certainly when you play a team as good as Missouri in their home town where the fans are very rabid, it makes it even more special.

"Our embarrassment last year was almost as much by our hands, however, as by Missouri's. We played such a poor game, and they played an outstanding game."

For USC, it was as though 1976 was divided into two seasons: the Missouri game, and the other eleven.

It was the most lopsided opening-day loss in the school's proud gridiron history, dating to 1888. Missouri scored 46 points...the Trojans' next 11 opponents totaled only 93. Missouri had four touchdown plays covering 24 yards or longer...the rest of the year, the USC defense suffered only two touchdown plays longer than nine yards.

Oklahoma quarterback Thomas Lott remained a question mark for the Vanderbilt opener, nursing a sore knee. But Sooner fans may witness the emergence of a new Big Red star with the long-awaited debut of halfback Billy Sims, the Hooks, Tex., sophomore with epic press clippings.

Sims, the No. 2 rusher in Texas high school history, moved to the first team this week after a two-year bout with injuries.

The customary sellout mob at Nebraska's Memorial Field will see the unveiling of a brand new scoreboard, a new Astroturf, and the return of a raft of former Husker assistants who migrated to Washington State last year. Warren Powers, WSU head coach, was a long-time aide to Nebraka boss Tom Osborne.

"I'm sure that Warren will have them prepared to their optimum, so we are expecting a very good football team in Washington State," said Osborne.

Brigham Young was the only team Kansas State beat last year, and after the 13-3 victory, Wildcat Coach Ellis Rainsberger said, "a team has to do two of three things to be successful. We had two of them, our defense and kicking game."

Hope for bigger crappie on Lake Wappapello

The Conservation Department is trying for that not-so-silly 76 millimeters longer on crappie in Lake Wappapello by lowering the daily crappie limit to 10, effective January 1. Possession remains 60, as it is statewide, except that an angler may not have more than 10 crappie while on the lake.

"If the experimental reduction doesn't cause an increase in the average length in two or three years," says Fred Vasey,crappie biologist for the Department, "we'll take it off.

"On the other hand, we think it will move the average length of crappie from less than nine inches up to our goal of 12 inches."

Vasey said a length limit has been considered, but it was felt to be to orestrictive. "We've been studying crappies in Missouri's large reservoirs for nine years," Vasey says. "Duri the last four or five years, we've become convinced that a reduction in harvest will improve the size and catch.

"Lake Wappapello is an ideal situation to test our theory. Crappie growth rates are good and most fish can live six to eight years,most in the lake and most caught are two or three years old."

Creel checks in 1976 showed that 90 per cent of the lake's anglers catch less than 10 crappie, so had the new regulation been in effect, it would have affected 10 per cent of those fishing--but the overall lake crappie creel would have gone down about 15 per cent, fish that would remain in the lake to grow larger.

As part of the planning for the new regulation, Department of Conservation fisheries managers mailed more than 2,400 letters to fishermen in the lake area and from St. Louis, which contributes heavy fishing pressure to the lake, and found about 90 percent favored a move to improve crappie fishing.

There is an experimental crappie regulation on the James River arm of Table Rock Lake--a daily limit of 10, plus a 10-inch minimum length.

The experiment was complicated and can't be fully evaluated because there was very poor crappie production in 1974-76, the years of the experiment.

"The James arm regulation was to protect the first good spawn we had...and we just had it," Vasey says. "It will take another couple of years to see what effect the regulation has."

Still, some 1973 fish remained in the lake in 1977, indicating the size and creel limits had an effect.

"Our only objective is to make fishing better for crappie anglers," Vasey says. "Sometimes it takes a little sacrifice now to result in better fishing later. The idea certainly isn't to penalize fishermen, but to make their sport better."

New crappie limit

Missouri will have a new experimental crappie limit of 10 daily on Lake Wappapello in an effort to increase average size of fish there from nine inches to 12 inches. Biologists feel there has been an overharvest of crappie on the lake, that most crappie caught are far short of their potential growth. (Department of Conservation photo)

Cards, Chiefs ready to go

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs and the St. Louis Cardinals are both primed for the start of the 1977 National Football League season.

But first, there's that little matter of the Missouri Governor's Cup.

"It's going to be important for us to play well against St. Louis," says Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin of the Chiefs' annual preseason clash with the Cardinals.

"And it's important we are ready to take on a very good football team a week later when the real bullets start to fly."

A crowd of about 35,000 is expected Saturday night when the Chiefs and Cardinals tangle at Arrowhead Stadium to decide the best professional football team in Missouri.

The Chiefs own a 5-3 edge in the yearly battle, but the Cardinals have claimed the last two decisions since Wiggin took over the Kansas City reins in 1975.

St. Louis will be trying to finish its exhibition campaign at 2-4, after notching its first victory of the summer against Chicago, 23-14, last week.

"Those first four games are gone. I've already forgotten them," said Cardinals Coach Don Corvell, whose team opens the regular season Sept. 18 at Denver.

"The Cardinals you saw against the Bears are the real Cardinals. We're on the right track now but we had a little scare before we got there."

St. Louis will throw quarterback Jim Hart and running backs Terry Metcalf at Kansas City, which will counter with Mike Livingston, MacArthur Lane and Tony Reed.

The Chiefs, who travel to New England for their regular season opener, fell, 24-16, to the Atlanta Falcons last Monday but would finish the summer session at 3-3 with a victory over St. Louis.

Charlie "The Chief" Francis won the weekly prediction lottery (just a figure of speech) last time, nudging Dale "The Forb" Forbis by three measly points, 144 to 147. Rumor has it that the Chief will wait until he misses by less than an average of three touchdowns per call before he brags.

Needless to say, neophyte prediction man Micael "Whale" Marsh brought up the rear (another figure of speech), missing his eight picks by more than 170 points. Encouraged by the success, or lack of it, local sporting authority Cavid "The Zig" Ziegenhorn has volunteered his two cents worth. Unfortunately for Zig, that lastline was not a figure of speech.

DEXTER AT CHAFFEE– Voted by the panel members to be thegame of the week," this one should be tough – and close. Neither defense is expected toslow the opposing offense, so the fella keeping score hasbetter keep loose. The new man breaks from the fold right off, going with Chaffee and a mild upset.

CHIEF: Dexter by 4,
FORB: Dexter by 3,
WHALE: Dexter by 8,
ZIG: Chaffee by 6.

JACKSON ST FREDRICKTOWN – Jackson and Perryville are very comparable and Perryville beat this MAC outfit 32-zip last Friday. Look for coach Paul Webber to go to his deeper (than Perryville) bench sooner and keep the score just a little closer. This one was in the running for "rout of the week."

CHIEF: Jackson by 10,
FORB: Jackson by 21,
WHALE: Jackson by 17,
ZIG: Jackson by 16.

KENNETT AT MALDEN – Kennett is trying to get back on the winning track under new coach. A lot of Indian players are back from last year's team. But they were 2-8, so is that good or bad? This matchup of Dunklin county squads was in the running for "crummy game of the week." Didn't make it.

CHIEF: Kennett by 14,
FORB: Kennett by 17,
WHALE: Kennett by 10,
ZIG: Kennett by 8.

STE. GENEVIEVE AT PERRYVILLE – Ste. Genevieve's Warriors descend into the Pirates lair and they shouldn't.Perryville is loaded for bear – and Warrior.

CHIEF: Perryville by 14,
FORB: Perryville by 14,
WHALE: Perryville by 14,
ZIG: Perryville by 16.

SPRINGFIELD-GLENDALE AT POPLAR BLUFF – Annually this is a who cares" game for everyone in the district except those involved. This year is different. The game could go a long way toward telling the truth about a supposedly strong Mule team. The panel thinks the first game disappointment was just a fluke.

CHIEF: Poplar Bluff by 2,
FORB: Poplar Bluff by 12,
WHALE: Poplar Bluff by 7,
ZIG: Poplar Bluff by 6.

CARUTHERSVILLE AT DONIPHAN – Caruthersville has one quarterback too many and one runner too few. It won't be enough to hold new coach Block's Tigers back against inexperienced Doniphan.

CHIEF: Caruthersville by 10,
FORB: Caruthersville by 16,
WHALE: Caruthersville by 10,
ZIG: Caruthersville by 14.

CHIEF: I-SC by 28,
FORB: I-SC by 30,
WHALE: I-SC by 28,
ZIG: I-SC by 24.

HAYTI AT SOUTH PEMISCOT – A split vote on whether 22 players will show. Hayti must win this "crummy game of the week" if they are to bounce back from setbacks in their program during recentyears. A scoreless tie would not surprise.

CHIEF: Hayti by 23,
FORB: Hayti by 18,
WHALE: Hayti by 14,
ZIG: Hayti by 8.

ST. VINCENTS-PERRYVILLE AT PORTAGEVILLE – The Portageville team has some horses and the home field. Portageville a solid pick for a win.

CHIEF: Portageville by 7,
FORB: Portageville by 20,
WHALE: Portageville by 24,
ZIG: Portageville by 18.

SIKESTON AT ST. THOMAS -The initial vote was nearly unanimous for a one-point win. Then some of the panelists, who don't have a sense for the ironic, changed their picks to protect themselves in the prediction race. Aquinas lost big in its first outing and faces a bleak future after Sikeston, since they play Ladue and Vianney in the next two games. They realize a win is a must. The game is a big one for both teams.

CHIEF: Sikeston by 1,
FORB: Sikeston by 7,
WHALE: Sikeston by 14,
ZIG: Sikeston by 1.

Pirates rip Cardinals

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dave Parker says the race is over, and he's not talking about the run for the money in the National League East.

"I honestly think the batting title this year is mine," Parker said Thursday night after rapping two singles and a two-run homer to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 9-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Make that Rennie Stennett's and mine because he had an outstanding chance to win it himself before his tragic injury," Parker said, referring to the Pirate infielder recovering from a leg fracture.

Parker's three-for-four night raised his National League leading average to .350. Stennett's second at .336, and the closest active pursuer, Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons, stayed at .331 after going one-for-three.

"I very seldom go more than two games in a row without a hit, and really don't see why it should change," said Parker, whose two-run homer off Al Hrabosky came in the seventh inning when the Pirates scored three times to erase a 5-4 Cardinal lead.

The Pirates fell behind 5-1 when the Cardinals scored three unearned runs in the fourth with the help of an error by shortstop Frank Taveras and Ken Reitz' two-run single off Jim Rooker.

Pittsburgh pulled to within 5-4 with three fifth-inning runs off Bob Forsch. Parker, who singled and scored in the fourth, scored again in the fifth after a single.

Then came Hrabosky, the "Mad Hungarian" whose record has climbed from 2-4 to 6-5 since July 21 when he was given club permission to regrow his beard.

He was his old self as he faced Parker. Prior to his first pitch, he turned his back to the plate, stepped away from the mound and stopped to concentrate. Then he dramatically tossed the ball into his mit and went to work.

The first pitch was a ball. The next one went over the rightfield wall, Parker's 19th homer.

"I don't mind what Hrabosky does out there," said Parker. "I think it's good for baseball."

Yet it was a special homer for Parker. "I'd never hit one off him," he said. "Now he's in my book."

SEATTLE (AP) — Darrell Porter of the Kansas City Royals has bid a fond farewell to the Kingdome.

"I'd be crazy if I said I'm glad to leave it," Porter said Thursday night. "I've always been a streak hitter, but I've never had two games like this."

For the second night in a row he socked two home runs, pushing his total for the year to 15, and collected four hits, leading the Royals in a 7-2 victory over Seattle to sweep a four-game series with the Mariners. Kansas City now has won nine straight and 20 of its past 23 games.

"Those two Porter hit would have been out anywhere," Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog said. "A fly ball's a thrill here."

The first time the Royals visited Seattle, they won three of four games but hit only one home run. This time they hit 12.

The Royals got all but one of their runs Thursday night on home runs, including John Mayberry's 21st, a two-run shot in the ninth inning; Frank White's fifth in the seventh, and Hal McRae's 18th in the third. The other Kansas City run scored on a fifth-inning single by Al Cowens.

The Mariners got their other run in the fourth when Julio Cruz' groundball skipped by Kansas City third baseman George Brett for an error, scoring Lee Stanton. Steve Braun tried to score from second on the play but was thrown out by left fielder Joe LaHoud.

In the next inning, Seattle leftfielder Dave Collins cut down McRae trying to score on a short fly ball. McRae spiked Seattle catcher Bob Stinson, who required eight stitches in his right hand. He'll be out at least a week, Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson said.

"It's the dirtiest play I've seen in 15 years," Johnson said.

McRae visited the Mariners clubhouse after the game to see Stinson, but Johnson said "that's like shooting your mother-in-law and saying your sorry."

"We go out there trying to win," he said. "I'm not worrying about complete games and strikeouts."

Mrs. Howington gets first ace

NEW MADRID--Sikeston golfer Evelyn Howington scored her first hole-in-one Saturday as she and her husband Bill won the doubles tournament at the New Madrid Country Club.

Mrs. Howington used a six iron as she aced the par 3 18th hole. Witnesses were Florence and Ben Caple of New Madrid and Bill Howington, her husband-partner.

The Howington's were champions in Class A.

New UMC Alumni Center

COLUMBIA——The $1 million Alumni Center of the University of Missouri—Columbia will be dedicated Friday. Gov. Joseph Teasdale will participate in the ceremonies scheduled for 10 a.m. on the center's south lawn. UMC Alumni Association president Doris England of St. Louis will present the symbolic key to the building to UMC Chancellor Herbert W. Schooling. Remarks also will be made by University Board of Curators president Rex Williams of Rolla and by UM president James C. Olson. Shuttle buses will transport guests from the Hearnes and Faurot Field parking areas to the Alumni Center at 9 and 9:40 a.m. The buses will leave from the southeast corner of the Hearnes Building and will pick up additional passengers at parking gate number one at Faurot Field. Informal tours of the new facilities will be available from 9 a.m. until the dedication ceremonies. The Alumni Center, located southwest of the campus adjoining the A.L. Gustin Golf Course, is the only major UMC building financed entirely by gift money. Some 1,600 contributions provided nearly $1 million for construction and furnishing of the center. The center is one of the few buildings in the nation designed exclusively for alumni and development fund activities. Offices of professional staff members are provided as well as meeting rooms for alumni affairs. The building has provided the setting for meetings of many groups from on and off the campus. In conjunction with the dedication, the Association will host a dinner Sept. 9 for donors who gave $1,000 or more to the building fund drive.

Promotional brochures ready

The Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce has received its promotional brochures and is already handing them out to prospective industries and doctors and other individuals wanting information on the city. The 24-page booklet tells Sikeston's story with text and color pictures.

SANTA CRUZ SALAMANDER

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Sally is protected now.

Sally is a nickname for the endangered Santa Cruz long-toed salamander. The creature occupies only two spots in the world, Ellicott Pond and Valencia Lagoon, both in Santa Cruz County. The total population is about 10,000.

To protect her, the county board of supervisors has adopted an "SP" (salamander protection) district in which any construction must take into account the habits of the shy, slow-moving salamander. In such a district, all new curbs and gutters must be rounded; building sites must be made passable for salamanders; grading of Sally's habitat vegetation must be kept to a minimum and continous retaining walls longer than 100 feet must have gently sloped ramps for them.

"People are saying we must be joking when they learn of the requirements," said Robin Felburg, an associate planner for the county. "They tell us we are putting salamanders before people, but we felt we could preserve the salamander's habitat without unusual restrictions."

By JIM DRINKARD
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — In some of the mid-Missouri communities where he works, people just can't say enough nice things about Paul Lutz. But in other towns, the praise is less than whole-hearted.

Lutz is a community development specialist with the University of Missouri's extension program, who for 10 years has helped communities in a four-county area solve problems ranging from lack of housing for the elderly to inadequate water systems.

"We'd be lost without him," says Joe Davison, mayor of New Franklin. But Pete Steiner, a newspaper editor who heads a Vandalia businessmen's group which Lutz helped conduct a survey of shoppers, says the community development program sometimes has to scramble to justify its existence.

"There is this tendency for self-perpetuation. They can be perhaps a little pushy at times," Steiner said.

Other critics of the university's sprawling statewide extension programs have been more blunt, charging it with duplication, waste and being the product of "empire-building" by former University President C. Brice Ratchford.

A special commission appointed by Gov. Joseph Teasdale to look into the extension programs of Missouri's public colleges and universities begins a series of public hearings around the state Sept. 19 to hear testimony from extension's supporters and critics.

A survey of commission members shows the group is likely to look hardest at programs such as those run by Lutz and 35 other community development and local government specialists across the state. Agricultural, home economics and 4-H programs, extension's traditional functions, are likely to remain relatively unscathed.

"I would say that would have a certain amount of influence (on the commission's recommendations)," Melton said.

Of the twelve commission members, two are from urban areas. The group includes five state legislators who represent primarily rural districts, a farmer, an official of the Missouri Farm Bureau and the director of the Missouri Department of Agriculture.

The commission's chairman, Cordell Tindall of Fayette, is a vice president of a company which publishes farm magazines in Missouri and four other states.

The group was formed by the governor July 8 to "review and recommend changes that may be necessary in the scope, organization, management and funding of extension activities." During his gubernatorial campaign, Teasdale said he heard criticism of extension programs around the state.

Although the commission was charged with studying extension in all state higher education, it will concentrate primarily on the four-campus University of Missouri.

Tindall said the university is being singled out for special attention because of its conflicts with the legislature over this year's appropriations. It also operates by far the largest, most complex extension network in the state, with the equivalent of more than 1,300 full-time employes and a budget of more than $22 million.

Agricultural extension in Missouri dates back to 1914, when the University established outposts to fulfill its role, as a land-grant institution, of taking education to outstate Missouri.

The community development and academic aspects of the university's program began more than 40 years later, and mushroomed during the 1960s, when federal grants were available for almost any program an administrator could dream up.

Ratchford rode the burgeoning extension division to the top post at the university, and as president was extension's strongest advocate. His staunch defense of extension led to bitterness among some legislators, bitterness that surfaced during hearings about the university's budget requests earlier this year.

The legislature finally asserted control by isolating the extension budget from other university appropriations and refusing to increase its allocation over last year's amount — a move equivalent to a budget cut, when inflation is taken into account.

The extension program's confusing chain of command and budgeting methods baffled many legislators and some members of the commission. At one of its meetings, the commission heard an explanation of extension's structure and budget presented by analysts from the Missouri Department of Administration.

In addition to examining extension's top-heavy administrative structure, the commission will look into charges that extension programs often duplicate other, less expensive courses operated by local community colleges or high schools, and that courses in trivial subjects are paid for with state funds.

"The university teaches extension courses in Jefferson City that are the same as courses offered by Lincoln University," said Rep. Steve Vossmeyer, D-St. Louis, a commission member. "I think that's outrageous."

Other commission members cited extension coures in belly dancing, wine tasting and how to form a labor union as being of questionable value.

But the area that remains the "most suspect," said Chairman Tindall, is community development, which he said has mounted "quite a public relations program of their own" in his area.

"I just question the effectiveness of what they do. I don't question the need for it," Tindall said.

And Paul Lutz concedes that a little promotion may be needed for his activities. "Our philosophy has always been not to take credit for any of the things we do," he says. "But if people are in favor of this (community development extension) they ought to let the commission know."

Extension commission sets meeting schedule

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Joseph Teasdale's extension study commission has announced a schedule of public hearings around Missouri in September. All of the meetings begin at 7 p.m. on the dates shown in the following cities:

- Sept. 19, Student Union, Northeast Missouri State University, Kirksville.
- Sept. 20, J. C. Penney Continuing Education Building, University of Missouri-St. Louis.
- Sept. 21, University Center Building, Southeast Missouri State University, Cape Girardeau.
- Sept. 22, Campus Union Building, Southwest Missouri State University, Springfield.
- Sept. 26, Warren E. Hearnes Learning Resources Center, Missouri Western State College, St. Joseph.
- Sept. 27, Westport Room, University Center Building, University of Missouri-Kansas City.
- Sept. 28, House Lounge, Capitol Building, Jefferson City.

Persons wishing to comment on extension services and their operation are invited to attend the hearings. Comments also may be mailed to the commission at P.O. Box 809, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Gun control poll

One of the major issues of the Carter administration is the quest for stricter gun control in the President's forthcoming crime control package. Reliable sources say that the 95th Congess and the Carter administration will be pushing for the control this year.

The questions provided below are for you to voice your own opinion on the gun control issue. Please answer each one and mail your response to the Daily Standard, 205 S. New Madrid, Sikeston, MO., 63801.

Responses will be tabulated and results of the poll will be published in the Daily Standard at a later date.

1. Should private ownership of Handguns be banned by federal law?
2. Should the sale of handguns be limited to two per person per year?
3. Should the sale of sporting guns be subject to stringent federal regulations?
4. Should gun owners be required to register their guns?
5. If guns are registered should the names and addresses of the registrants be made available to government agencies?
6. Do you belive the U.S. Constitution guarantees citizen ownership of handguns for personal protection?

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1776, the term "United States" became official in a ruling of the Second Continental Congress.

On this date:

In 1830, Charles Durant made early aviation history by flying in a balloon from New York City across the Hudson River to Perth Amboy, N.J.

In 1850, California was admitted to the Union as the 31st state.

In 1893, the First Lady, Mrs. Grover Cleveland, became the mother of a baby girl. It was the first time that a child had been born to a first lady in the White House.

In 1919, Boston police went on strike. Massachusetts Governor Calvin Coolidge ruled that they would not be permitted to return to their jobs on grounds they had no right to strike and endanger public safety.

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Company was formed as a service of the Radio Corporation of America.

In 1946, the formal surrender of about 1 million Japanese soldiers took place in China, at Nanking.

Services are scheduled Saturday at Kammann Funeral Home.

Burial will follow in a local cemetery.

Wilbert Bernard

ORAN -- Wilbert Bernard, 65, was pronounced dead on arrival at Chaffee General Hospital at 3 p.m. Thursday, following an apparent heart attack while mowing the lawn at his home.

He was born Nov. 9, 1911 at Oregon City, Ore. to the late Lacey and Betty McDowell Bernard. Three brothers and two sisters preceded him in death.

On Nov. 26, 1931, he married Mayme Estes of Oran, who survives.

He was employed as maintenance foreman for St. Lukes Hospital in St. Louis for 23 years before retiring last October.

He was a member of First Baptist Church.

Other survivors include: One son, Lloyd Gentry Bernard of Springfield; three brothers, Linus Bernard of Wilcox, Ariz., Lawrence Bernard of Burfordville and Lail Bernard of Cape Girardeau; six sisters, Mrs. Elsie Millstead of Pontiac, Mich., Mrs. Ethel Thomas of Wilcox, Ariz., Miss Laydus Bernard of Flint, Mich., Mrs. Etber LeGrand and Mrs. Zexia Sietman of Oran and Mrs. Barbara Venable of Scott City; stepmother, Idus Bernard of Sikeston; a stepsister, Mrs. Edith Crafton of Houston, Tex.; and three grandchildren.

Friends may call after 6:30 p.m. today at Amick-Burnett Funeral Chapel, where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Sunday with the Rev. Marshall Link, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in Forest Hills Memorial Gardens near Morley.

lime trucks at 3:50 p.m. Thursday on Highway 21, six miles south of Doniphan in Ripley County, resulted in minor injuries to Mary Elizabeth Hoefer, 63, of Doniphan, a passenger in the pickup truck driven south by her husband, William L. Hoefer, 75, of Doniphan Route Four.

Mrs. Hoefer was taken to the Ripley County Memorial Hospital in Doniphan.

The patrol said the accident occured when Hoefer was slowing and attempted to make a right turn into a private drive was struck by a southbound lime truck driven by Lloyd Gambling, 32, of Fairdealing Route One, whose truck was then struck by another southbound lime truck driven by Charles S. Aldrich, 19, of Doniphan route one.

Gerry Joyner, 53, of Doniphan, a passenger in a car driven east by Marvin Franklin Pulliam, 54, of Doniphan, suffered minor injuries when the Pulliam car struck a dirt embankment.

The patrol reported the accident occured at 8:30 p.m. Thursday on Highway 160, two miles west of Fairdealing, when the eastbound Pulliam car met an oncoming vehicle on his side of the road and he ran off the road into a ditch and struck a dirt embankment.

Eight persons, all of Chicago, received minor injuries in an accident at 5:15 a.m. today, two tenths of a mile north of Portageville on Interstate 55.

Injured was the driver of a southbound car, Patricia Ann Jackson, age unavailable, and seven passengers in the Jackson car, Eddie Murray, 30, Lovely L. Jones, 52, Ora Staples, 23, Shannon Jackson, 6, Patrece Murray, 7, Pajuan Murray, 9, and Shawnetta Murray, 6, all of Chicago.

The patrol said all of the injured received minor injuries and were taken to the Pemiscot Medical Center in Hayti.

The highway patrol said the Jackson woman said she was southbound, passing a semi-trailer truck, when the truck crossed the center line and struck her car in the right front.

The truck failed to stop and drove on, she said.

The council also adopted an ordinance setting the city's tax rate at $1.65 per $100 assessed valuation, the same rate as last year. A breakdown on the amount shows 75 cents will go into general revenue and the remaining 90 cents will be placed in two-separate general obligation bond funds, one 30 cents and the other 60 cents to pay off bond indebtness.

Lots one through 11 on Elbow Street in the Fletcher Addition were rezoned from residential to commercial by ordinance, as recommended by the planning and zoning commission. No objections were voiced during a recent public hearing on the proposed rezoning of the property owned by Hunt Wellborn.

The council approved a request from the Southeast Missouri Regional Crime Laboratory for $200 for the city's share in use of the facility for this year. In 1978 the city's share in the cost will be increased to $400 as federal funds will no longer be available.

A request for a $100 donation to assist in a grand opening celebration at the county airport on Oct. 2 was also approved.

Street paving and improvements brought a lengthy discussion without any definite action being taken. Blacktopping by the city street department has been considered for Folk Avenue and Shannon Street. The proposed project would cost over $11,000, according to City Administrator Frank Carter, who is to check statutes to determine if $1 per foot could be assessed residents along the two streets for street paving.

It was stressed by Alderman Jack Adkisson that it was his opinion that much-needed repairs along existing streets should be a top priority, noting there are some funds now on deposit gained from the city's one-cent sales tax and earmarked for street improvements.

It was pointed out by Mayor L.F. LaPlant Jr. that the city has spent over $39,000 for paving of Lombardy Drive and Pine Street in the past year and that without proper drainage, any repairs made would be only temporary.

Carter was authorized to purchase 50 water meters at a cost of $25 each and to check on the cost of chemicals for mosquito control next spring.

The need for walkie-talkies for the police department was brought up by Police Chief Jake Abner, who said existing radios were not working properly. The equipment is urgently needed, according to Abner, who stressed the need for the radios in the event another power outage such as that experienced earlier this week occurred.

Carter was authorized to have repairs made on the existing units for the present time until it is determined if the city can get new ones with assistance from the Bootheel Regional Law Enforcement Agency.

In other action, the council instructed the city attorney to draw up an ordinance pertaining to the regulations of a massage parlor; agreed to take applications for a city mechanic; approved the collector's report of $28,400.06 for August; Police judge report of $1,105.50 in fines; and disbursements of $11,253.48.

Overturned tanker spills gas in sewers

CAIRO, Ill. (AP) — A gasoline transport truck overturned on a main street in this community at the southern tip of Illinois Thursday night, sending gasoline into the storm sewers and posing a fire hazard, authorities said.

But before midnight, a spokesman for the Alexander County Sheriff's Department said the problem had been solved.

State troopers in Cairo said they understood that the truck was loaded with 7,500 gallons of gasoline.

The sheriff's spokesman said the accident occurred near the county jail and prisoners were transferred to the Pulaski County Jail about seven miles away.

The name of the truck driver was not available immediately.

Theologian foresees downfall unless science admits limits

NEW YORK (AP) — Theology once reigned as "queen" of all intellectual disciplines, but it had to repent its predominating pretensions. Now, the overruling standard of thought is science. Does it, too, need to confess its inherent limitations?

He says the kind of absoluteness and sovereignty now claimed by science may lead to the kind of downfall and rejection suffered by religion for its past posture of authority over all truth.

"Queen religion," which held supreme sway over all fields of inquiry in the Middle Ages, was saved from total banishment only because theologians made a serious re-evaluation of it, he says, admitting its limitations.

As a result, it "has even undergone a recent resurgence and developed an appeal for modern man."

But the scientific method, he adds, still holds to its image of cultural supremacy as the sole source of valid information, but it, too, may be dethroned by the technological society it has created — and disappointed — unless it recognizes its limited, conditional role.

"Science and applied science — like every other aspect of human creativity — must learn to live and deal with the vast ambiguity of their own creativity," he says, lest it distort and obscure the wider reality.

Such awareness, he adds, probably is now as new and upsetting to "the scientist as it once was new to the priest."

But "the lesson of history, and now of the history of a scientific culture — and also the message of the Gospel — is that it is the very creativity of man that can spell his doom, that his knowledge can be turned into blindness, and his power into self-destruction," Gilkey says.

A Baptist professor of theology, Gilkey, 58, is author of numerous trenchant books, including "Religion and the Scientific Future" (Harper & Row), and "Reaping the Whirlwind" (Seabury Press).

His views on scientific predominance and its need for qualifications were first presented at a science and religion conference at Gustavus Adolphus College, and are included in a new volume, "The Future of Science."

Just as theology once was considered the reigning criteria and source of "true" knowledge, with all other disciplines seeking to incorporate its reasoning, he says science and technology now hold that encompassing sway.

Jewish New Year and holy days to begin on Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — The sound is piercing, soul-stirring, powerful. It comes from the shofar, Hebrew for ram's horn, the world's oldest wind instrument. Three blasts from it mark the start of the Jewish high holy days.

The observance begins at sunset Monday with Rosh Hashana, Hebrew for the "beginning of the year," the first part of the "10 days of awe" culminating on Sept. 22 with the day of atonement, Yom Kippur.

It's a time of self-examination, repentence for past wrongs and rededication to a more righteous future, individually and for all humanity.

"O Lord our God ... gather all thy children around thy banner of truth that thy name may be hallowed ... and the entire human family may be blessed with truth and peace," goes a prayer for the services.

Although Rosh Hashana, calculated by the old Jewish lunar calendar, marks the legendary 5738th year since creation, the occasion is celebrated not as a chronoligical measuring point, but a "new year" of conscience.

It summons people "to spiritual regeneration," Rabbi Walter S. Wurzburger, president of the Rabbinical Council of America, representing the Orthodox wing of Judaism, said in a message for the observance.

Rabbi Ely E. Pilchik, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, an arm of Reform Judaism, said human life itself is the major concern of the observance this time because of modern downgrading of life's "sanctity and dignity."

Rabbi Stanley Rabinowitz, president of the Rabbinical Assembly, an arm of Conservative Judaism, said the high holy days "help the worshipper deal with feelings of guilt."

Besides taking stock of past faults and contrition for them, believers seek forgiveness not only of themselves but to forgive those who have wronged them and commitment to a better future.

Jewish tradition says that on Rosh Hashana, humanity's fate for the coming year is written down and that it is sealed 10 days later on Yom Kippur.

Navy officer resigns to enter priesthood

Bauer, a combat veteran who now handles nonflying administrative duties with the Blue Angels flight team here, has resigned his commission to join the clergy.

He'll enter the Josephenium School of Theology in Worthington, Ohio, next month. He hopes eventually to be ordained a Roman Catholic priest in the Diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Mo., his home area.

The 30-year-old officer says he finds no conflict between roles as warrior and priest.

"It really wasn't a problem," Bauer said. "I joined the Navy of my own free will — I knew what I was getting into. I incurred the obligation to carry out my orders to the utmost of my ability and I'm still operating under that same commissioning oath I took several years ago."

Bauer has been in the Navy for eight years. His father was a Navy radarman in World War II and since high school Bauer had wanted a naval career.

Then as a student at Southwest Missouri State University he began to feel "just an idea" about higher service.

It became a compelling drive. He said he made the decision to change about a year ago.

During the waning months of the Vietnam war, Bauer served in combat as a flight officer aboard F4 Phantom jets. The flight officer handles navigational and other duties while the pilot does the actual flying.

Bauer said his decision to enter a five-year seminary program doesn't require any judgment of: "Is the military right or wrong?"

"After ordination," he said, "I might possibly re-enter the Navy."

Area training clinic planned

A regional Church Training Clinic for Baptist churches of the southeast Missouri area will be conducted Tuesday at Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 W. Murray Lane.

The clinic is sponsored by the Missouri Baptist Convention, and will be led by stateworkers under the guidance of the Rev. Jim Thomas, director of the Church Training Department for the Convention.

Separate sessions are planned for all age-level workers in local church training programs,well as staff members and general officers.

The clinic will be divided into afternoon and evening sessions– 1:15 to 4:30 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Youth fellowship service slated

MALDEN--A fellowship service for Baptist youth of southeast Missouri will be conducted Sept. 16 at Macedonia Baptist Church, located at the corner of North Edwards and Davis streets, according to Otis L. Hawes Jr. of Poplar Bluff, director of SeMo Baptist Fellowship, the sponsoring organization.

The keynote speaker for the 7:30 p.m. event will be the Rev. David Ring of Liberty.

Other personalities on the program will be Rex Rattler of Poplar Bluff, Willis Green of Sikeston, Danny Kilgore of Malden, the Mayo Family of Doniphan, St. Paul Baptist Church youth choir of Wardell and Mary Ethridge of Bloomfield.

The Rev. David Ring

State training leader to be guest speaker

The Rev. Jim Thomas, director of the Church Training Department for the Missouri Baptist Convention in Jefferson City, will be the guest speaker for both the 10:45 a.m. amd 7 p.m. worship services Sunday at Murray Lane Baptist Church, 807 w. murray Lane.

The pulpit guest will speak in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Wade Paris, who is out of town.

Prior to joining the Missouri Baptist Convention staff earlythis year, the Rev. Mr. Thomas was associate pastor and minister of education at First Baptist Church in Ferguson and a former minister of education and administrator of Tower Grove Baptist Church in St. Louis.

Ordained to the gospel ministry in 1957, the Monett native pastored churches in Missouri and Oklahoma and held pastoral and education positions at churches in Texas, Arizona and Louisiana before returning to Missouri.

He is a graduate of Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar, Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee, Okla., and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth Tex.

He and his wife,Shirley, have two teen-age children, Teresa Ann and Timothy Dale.

National meeting set for Christian Gypsies

TEXARKANA,-- Thousands of American Gypsies are expected to attendthe first national Gypsy Christian Convention Sept. 18-25 at the International Chemical Center here. The event is sponsored by the Assemblies of God Division of Home Missions.

Participants will include Christians from Gypsy camps in France and Germany who will present their testimonies of conversion to Christianity. Speakers will include the Rev. T. E. Gannon, national director of the Division of Home Missions; the Rev. Clement LeCossec of France; and the Rev. Hoseph Mazzu, who has worked among European Gypsies. Gypsy musicians will play for the gospel sings.

The Rev. Patrick O. McLane, representative to the Gypsies for the U.S. Assemblies of God, iscoordinator of the convention.

A major Pentecostal revival has swept the Gypsy camps of Europe since 1952 and more than 50,000 Gypsies have been baptized in water, the Rev. Mr. McLane states. Several years ago the revival spread to the United States, and Gypsy congregations have been formed in California, Arkansas, and New Jersey. Several services are held in Romany, the international Gypsy language.

The Rev. Mr. McLane estimates there are about two million Gypsies in the United States. He said the convention is being held in Texarkana because of the large number of Gypsies living in the area nad because Pentecostal home missionaries have been working in this area.

Prior to this national convention, a three-day Gypsy convention is scheduled Sept. 11-13, at Ecclesia Assemblies of God Church inBrooklyn, N.Y.

The Assemblies of God, with headquarters in pringfield, Mo., is the largest among the Pentecostal bodies. The church has over one and one - fourth million members and adherents in this country and in excess of six million worldwide.

HIGH SPY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Portrait Gallery, a branch of the Smithsonian Institution, has acquired what Marvin Sadik, director, says is the only known life portrait of Revolutionary War hero Enoch Crosby, master spy.

The portrait, which was done by the studio of Samuel Waldo and William Jewett, was commissioned by John R. Peters of New York and painted in 1830. It belonged to Peters' descendants before passing into the hands of the gallery.

Crosby, a hero in his own time, was considered one of the most skillful spies in the revolution. He worked at times directly with George Washington. Crosby was also the model for James Fenimore Cooper's novel, "The Spy."

Full gospel group to meet here Saturday

The Sikeston chapter of Full Gospel Men's Fellowship International will meet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Sikeston Christian Center, 210 E. Center St.

The guest speaker will be Carl Potter of Spavinaw, Okla., a successful businessman and motel owner whose hobby is serving as a fishing guide for anglers visiting the Spavinaw area. He also is president of the local Full Gospel Business Men's chapter and is a lay speaker for the Assembly of God Church.

Potter recently returned from Israel, and will share some highlights of the trip.

The meeting is open to men and women of all faiths.

Fellowship of Christian Peace Officers small but growing

"A man can get a heart of stone doing police work and his love for others shrivels up and drifts away," said Higgins.

The burly sergeant is deeply involved in a small but growing group of law enforcement agents who have formed the Fellowship of Christian Peace Officers. Twenty-five officers belong to the San Francisco chapter with other units in Oakland, Los Angeles and other cities.

Sgt. Art Brandwood, president of the fellowship's 10-member Oakland chapter, said trying to spread the Gospel among policemen is a difficult challenge.

He said many officers look on Christianity as "a weakness, a crutch that's alright for women, children and old people — but not for the rugged, he-man type of guy."

However, Brandwood said "God is dealing with that attitude" through the example of others in police ranks who are respected for physical prowess and proven ability as cops "and who still love and serve Christ."

Higgins and his partner, Sgt. Jim Crowley, made an appeal for prayers last October on the Virginia-based Christian Television Network. They decried San Francisco as a "wicked city that needs all the prayers it can get."

Their religious message to anyone who will listen involves an evangelical attack on pornography, drug addiction, homosexuality and San Francisco's high rate of alcoholism, suicide and veneral disease.

Last summer, Crowley got embroiled in a public spat with his own police chief, Charles Gain, when Gain urged gay policemen to come out of the closet.

The husky Crowley said he considered homosexuals as "the deceived who are deceiving others and leading them down the path to Satan. Only Jesus can break that bondage."

Crowley and Higgins said they pray daily that Gain and Mayor George Moscone will "finally come to the Lord."

San Francisco is a particularly fertile city for religious reawakening Crowley said, "because any vocal minority can find a politician willing to change the law, rather than enforce it. The Bible says the law was not meant for the righteous man, but for the wicked. If we keep going the way we are, we'll soon be rapist."

Higgins said he is not surprised that some people may find it difficult to believe that a hardened, street-wise cop can radically change his life by reading the Bible. "People who have known us for years, like our wives, can see the change," he said, "My life is great now.

"The things that used to be so important, putting the career first, ahead of everything, going out and drinking with the boys, having a ball, all have vanished. It's all gone through the mercy of Jesus."

Singing team to be Christian Center guests

THE NEW TESTAMENT
No. 16 Jesus Commands His Disciples

Jesus called the 12 disciples together, and he endowed them with the power to cast out evil spirits and to heal every sort of sickness and disease. Then he commanded them to go forth and to minister in his name, and to follow steadfastly the instructions he laid down for them.

"Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves. But beware of men: for they will deliver you up to the councils, and they will scourge you in their synagogues: And ye shall be brought before governors and kings for my sake, for a testimony against them and the Gentiles." (Matthew 10:16-18)

"And the brother shall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child: and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death. And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake; but he that endureth to the end shall be saved." (Matthew 10:21-22)

State tax cuts urged

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's healthy financial status would allow state government to maintain its current level of services and at the same time cut taxes, according to a report issued Wednesday by the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey.

In its analysis of the state's general fund, the group said both the state sales and income taxes should be reduced.

The sales tax should be cut by 1-8 cent to offset the recent increase in the tax by that amount for conservation purposes, the group said.

That move would eliminate the inconvenience of a tax "figured in an unwieldy fraction," the survey's report said.

In addition, the group urged a cut in the personal income tax to protect Missouri's taxpayers from "inflation-imposed higher taxation."

Tax tables and brackets should be adjusted so the tax would not diminish the increased salaries received to offset inflation, the group added.

The report said the present and future outlook for the state was favorable.

In the current year, estimated revenues were large enough to finance a 13 per cent increase in general revenue spending and still leave a $22 million uncommitted balance. Still, the state would be able to have a $55 million operating reserve and $18 million for supplemental or emergency appropriations, the group's figures showed.

The report took into account this summer's special legislative session was planning to spend about $20 million in general revenue money, along with federal revenue sharing, for the $140 million to pay for state building construction and renovation.

The group said the general trend of revenue receipts was "steeply upward and receipts have consistently exceeded estimates in recent years."

Other factors, along with rapidly rising revenue, are expected to continue to help improve the state's general revenue position, the group said.

"One is the federal take-over of adult welfare programs, which to date have reduced the state's annual cost from $50 million to $20 million," the report said. "Another is federal revenue sharing, which has been providing appropriations for building purposes, averaging about $54 million a year."

What's the law?

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

Norton was interrupted in the middle of a sentence -- a jail sentence. While serving time in the slammer, he walked right smack into a jail break while strolling down a corridor. And rather than risk leaving Norton behind, fearing that he might possibly sound an alarm, the escaping prisoners forced Norton to leave with them by threatening his life.

Once outside the prison walls, however, Norton quickly adapted to his newfound and unanticipated freedom. Discarded by the scattering prisoners, he began to stroll merrily down a highway with a whistle on his lips and a twinkle in his eyes. Unfortunately, as soon as he entered a town, he was promptly picked up by the local gendarmes, and much to his chagrin, he was charged with breaking out of jail.

"I had no choice," protested Norton in his defense. "I was forced to leave against my will. If I hadn't gone out, I'd been done in . Those escaping prisoners would have taken me apart cell by cell."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you find Norton guilty of breaking out of the slammer?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that even though Norton may have departed from jail under threat of violence, his failure to turn himself over the authorities at the first available opportunity constituted the crime of breaking jail.

"When we caught up with him," responded the arresting officers, "Norton was headed away from the prison as if he didn't have a care in the world. He was 'out' and he knew he should have been 'in'. He broke jail without breaking stride."

BOOK REVIEW

In 1937, during the Fourth of July weekend, William Humphrey's father was injured fatally in an auto accident while returning to his home in the small Texas town of Clarksville. Humphrey was 13 years old at the time.

"Farther Off From Heaven" is Humphrey's nostalgic look back at his childhood and the time that childhood ended with the death of his father. While the book does have its moments, as a whole it will be of more interest to the author and his immediate family than to a general readership.

The problem is that it's such an intensely personal document that the reader always has the feeling of an outsider being allowed to peek in but only being allowed to see what the

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Then God said, "Let the water beneath the sky be gathered into oceans so that the dry land will emerge." And so it was. Then God named the dry land "earth," and the water "seas." And God was pleased. And he said, "Let the earth burst forth with every sort of grass and seed-bearing plant, and fruit trees with seeds inside the fruit, so that these seeds will produce the kinds of plants and fruits they came from." And so it was, and God was pleased. This all occurred on the third day.

Companies get involved in public service

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer

Orchestra Hall, sparkling home of the renowned Minnesota Orchestra, was built three years ago with some $14.2 million in private funds.

When the Minnesota Vikings couldn't quite sell out some home football games, a financial angel stepped up three times to buy a few thousand tickets. Result: television fans at home weren't blacked out, and disadvantaged adults and children got a chance to see a pro grid game.

These are three ways that business has helped to meet what corporate leaders here call their "social responsibility." The program centers on the Minnesota Corporate Community Five Per Cent Investment Club. The Greater Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce launched what it considers the unique plan last year with 23 members and it has expanded to 34.

The member companies pledge to donate at least 5 per cent of their pretax earnings to various charitable, educational and community services. The Internal Revenue Service permits up to 5 per cent writeoff for such purposes. But some ventures are motivated by profit, too, the executives concede.

General Mills is sponsoring apartment rehabilitation. It loaned $3 million to Stevens Court, Inc., which expects to spruce up 1,000 apartments by 1984.

Sixty-three per cent of the Orchestra Hall funding came from private businesses. Through a special arrangement, the hall was sold to the city and leased to the orchestra.

Pillsbury Co. stepped in to assure local TV coverage of three Vikings' home games when the contests were not sellouts 72 hours prior to game time. The few thousand tickets, bought for about $10 apiece, were donated to charities.

The national average for corporate giving to community projects last year was about .86 of their pretax income, according to David Koch, president of Graco, Inc., and last year's chamber chief. Throughout Minnesota the average was 1.3 per cent.

Publicly held corporate contributions in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area totaled $16 million. But even the little guys get into the act. Anderson's China Shop donated 5 per cent, or about $1,000 last year. "My grandfather founded the company in 1879 and I came into the business 30 years ago. It's a natural thing to give at least 5 per cent. We're part of the community," said President Alan Anderson.

A few companies were contributing 5 per cent of their pretax earnings prior to the club's formation. Dayton Hudson Corp., a national retailing and development firm, has been doing so 31 years. It donated over $5 million in 1976, company officials said.

Many larger area firms are not listed on the 5 per cent roster although their contributions rate above the national average and some make civic contributions in other ways.

For example, Honeywell, Inc., is expanding its headquarters just two miles from downtown, rather than building in the suburbs, and Pillsbury chose to erect a new headquarters in the heart of downtown.

Honeywell donated $1.7 million last year, about 53 per cent to health and welfare and 33 per cent to education. It has bought more than $28 million in goods and services from minority-managed firms in the past five years.

Control Data, a computer firm located in suburban Bloomington, emphasizes social action by locating some plants in depressed areas here and in other states. It operates a bindery in St. Paul that provides employment for over 100 persons, many of them minority women and college students who need odd-hours jobs.

The 3M Co. donated some $4 million to $5 million last year, and has made land grants to two government agencies in Minnesota and New Jersey worth an estimated $2 million. The General Mills Foundation and Contributions Committee pumped out $4.1 million the past fiscal year.

Among the larger 5 per cent club members, in addition to Dayton Hudson, are Northwestern National Bank, First National Bank and the Minneapolis Star and Tribune Co.

Contributions of Northern States Power Co. have amounted to about 5 per cent annually the past four years, says Rollie Comstock, vice president of communications. It amounted to $3.5 million in 1976, including the value of donated land along the Upper St. Croix River for parks.

Crazy dressers

Sandy Goab of Bresler's Ice Cream and Diane Cook of T G & Y Department Store help celebrate the first week-long Crazy Day event in the Kingsway Mall this week. Today's dress for a 3-day competition between the stores in the Mall is Sleepwear. Tomorrow's dress will be old-fashioned. The winning store will receive a $100 check from the Kingsway Mall Association.

GALLERY DIRECTOR

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Wilmerding, professor of art at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire, has been appointed curator of American art at the National Gallery here, J. Carter Brown, the Gallery's director, said.

The 39-year-old Boston native graduated in 1960 from Harvard College, returning there for a master's degree and Ph.D. He joined the Dartmouth faculty in 1965 and eventually became chairman of the art department and humanities division. He has served on the visiting committees of a number of American museums.

Teasdale under fire

Revenue shakeup said prompted by pressure

By JESSE W. BUNN
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — When James T. LePage, Missouri revenue director, was forced to resign by Gov. Joseph Teasdale for refusing to fire four tax investigators, LePage said he realized Teasdale's request was "well within his prerogative" as governor.

But since Teasdale's surprising announcement that he was forcing LePage to quit, state legislators and officials, both Republican and Democrat, have questioned the propriety of the governor interfering in the affairs of an investigative bureau.

Their concern stems from information linking Teasdale's action to complaints from the governor's political allies that the bureau was slectively investigating cases. In particular, one complaintant, Harold Fridkin, a Kansas City lawyer and political adviser to Teasdale, represents clients investigated by the bureau. One of his clients contributed $1,000 to Teasdale's campaign.

In a press conference called to announce his resignation, LePage said he was aware of "pressure from other pressure points" to have the men dismissed.

Teasdale said his reason for calling for the agents' dismissal was that the men were appointed to the bureau by former Republican Gov. Christopher Bond. Teasdale said he wanted investigators loyal to him. "I'm running the government and that was the bone of contention," Teasdale said.

The effect of Teasdale's actions will be to stifle investigations presently underway since the agents may no longer be employed by the state when it comes time for the cases to go to court. LePage likened the situation to a person ticketed for speeding and when the defendant appears in court, there is no police officer to testify. Sandord Sarasohn, department of revenue counsel, said "the prosecution may have some problem with witnesses" if the men are forced to leave with cases to be tried.

One of the first to criticize Teasdale's actions was David T. Broeker, an assistant to the Missouri Republican chairman and a former Bond aide, who called for a state auditor's investigation into alleged selective prosecution of tax cases. In his press conference Teasdale, hinted at selective prosecution when he said the agents were concentrating efforts on Democrats and ethnic groups. He said of 10 convictions by the bureau in Kansas City, "eight were of Italian extraction, one was a Jew and one was a fellow named Jackson." Teasdale said, "I don't think it looks very good."

State Auditor Thomas M. Keyes, a Democrat, said his office, "would make inquiries to determine if any formal study of the state department of revenue's special tax-fraud investigative unit is called for."

Broeker also wrote to Senate President Pro Tem Norman L. Merrill, D-Lewis, who is chairman of the gubernatorial appointments committee, and asked for a review by the Senate. Broeker claimed Teasdale's actions are in direct conflict with a U.S. Supreme Court decision forbidding dismissals on the basis of partisan politics.

Republican Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps said he believed the four men could successfully appeal their dismissals in court because of the Supreme Court decision.

Another elected Democrat, State Treasurer James Spainhower, opposed the dismissal of LePage. Spainhower has been mentioned as a possible candidate for governor in 1980. In a televised interview, Spainhower called the firing of LePage "ill-advised" and "unfortunate."

The treasurer said he hoped Teasdale would reconsider his actions against LePage and would not persist in having the investigators fired. "I don't bclieve the governor of this state has any business becoming involved in the investigative arm of the government," Spainhower said.

There apparently has been at least some Democratic party opposition to Teadale's action according to Spainhower. "We're all Democrats and we like Gov. Teasdale," Spainhower said. "But we think he made a mistake here, and we think from the standpoint of good government and good politics we must say what we feel. And we think the evidence is quite clear here that this is headed in a direction that we as a party ought not to be headed."

Although LePage resigned Sept. 2, he has not determined when the resignation is effective. He planned to meet with Teasdale Sept. 12 to discuss the situation. Under the present department structure, Richard Judd, deputy director, would assume the position on LePage's departure.

Judd said he has not been contacted by the governor's office and has reached no decision on the dismissal of the agents.

Symington named in Park indictment
